

GRAFT CASE IS NEARING END

WOMEN ON JURY WEEP AS CROSBY COMPLETES PLEA FOR ACQUITTAL

such a man, consistently flouting his duty and his oath of office, ask you to send this man, any man, to prison?"

"With evidence coming from such a source, we ask you have they come into this court with testimony from lips unused to perjury, unskilled and uneducated in the art of deceit? Take them all, Book and Bard, Jue Moy, Goe Sam Kee and Little Ernest, are they sufficient even to create a suspicion in a rational mind?"

"And oh, then, remember Captain Book's statement: 'I was friendly to the chief.' I am hungry, and my friend brings me bread. I am thirsty and he brings me drink. I am in rags and my friend dotes his mantle to drape about my shivering shoulders. I am in distress and my friend takes me by the hand and leads me from its midst. This is friendship, but the word has no place on the tongue of Captain Book. They can put them all, Bard and Book and Looz and their Chinese friends, in one pan of the scale of justice and the little finger of this defendant in the other and they will shoot to the skies."

From this point Crosby proceeded into the picture of the returning son with which he—

DECETO SAYS CROSBY IS GREAT ACTOR.

District Attorney Deceto opened his reply and the final argument in the case to the jury in substance as follows:

"I wish I had the wonderful eloquence of my friend, Mr. Crosby. But I have not. I have neither his command of language nor his consummate ability as an actor. You need not feel ashamed of the tears that you have shed here. They have fallen because we are very close to human emotion in this trial and because you have been moved by a consummate actor. Few men on the stage itself can touch the heart strings as counsel for the defense."

"But we are here on a more serious purpose than the production of a wonderful emotional drama. We are here because we must be here, because the law commands us and because if it were not for that law we are sworn to uphold, our streets would be running red with blood. It is no easy duty to punish anyone, but let us cease punishing the guilty and we shall leave our country but a jungle of anarchy. So after all this case cannot be tried upon the rhetoric of Mr. Crosby because rhetoric cannot stop the gaps in the testimony."

EXPLAINS WHY THEY "LUMPED" INDICTMENTS.

To Crosby's charge that the prosecution had tried all of the indictments together Deceto replied that there was no other way to try them since they were inextricable and because together they proved beyond doubt the existence of the common plot or scheme of bribery which the state had alleged.

"We have gone into the Chinese cases," he added, "that you might understand the habits of the born companion and agent of this defendant, Dave Cockrell, alias Harry Hearn."

The prosecution, he said, was not required to show that the indictment was paid to Nedderman exactly on the 15th of the month, in reply to Crosby's criticism that the term "on or about the 15th" had been used, and he had said of the jury's task to fix an exact day of last May on which they did any particular thing. He took up discrepancies which were alleged in Looz's testimony and contrasted with these discrepancies he said existed in Nedderman's. He added:

TELLS WHY BOARD WAS NOT CALLED.

"If it follows from the fact that Captain Lynch and Looz do not tell exactly the same story that Looz tells, an untruth, then must it follow from the fact that Lynch and Nedderman did not tell the same story that Nedderman must be telling the untruth as well."

Crosby had criticized the state for not producing Fred Bard to support Looz in one instance, but Deceto showed that Bard's testimony would have been hearsay evidence, which the code forbids. He continued:

"The very inaccuracies in Looz's story show that that story was not told exactly as he told it before the grand jury you would immediately have set him down as a liar and suppose that he must have memorized it. His little inaccuracies are the best proof needed of the general accuracy of his indictment."

Deceto said the defense had made every possible effort to keep from the jury's consideration any connection of Dr. F. F. Jackson with this case. He explained:

"They were afraid to have Dr. Jackson drawn into it. They realized the danger of any connecting up of Dr. Jackson and this defendant."

REFERS TO PAYMENT AT HOTEL OAKLAND.

The incident at the Hotel Oakland, regarding which Looz gave the details of a payment on the veranda there to Nedderman and which Crosby scoffed at in his argument, was reviewed by the district attorney. He declared the consummation of a bribe there would not be in the least difficult, that $250 claimed to have been paid by Looz could have been passed to Nedderman without any fear of detection.

CHARGES DISCREPANCIES IN Looz's STORY.

In the course of his argument in the afternoon yesterday Crosby still paid special attention to Looz and his testimony. He pointed out on one occasion had said he paid Nedderman twice at the city hall; on another, that he paid him there eight times. Looz had been discredited by his own organization, the International Bartenders' Union, he said, and he attributed this to Looz and Bard "appropriating to their own use the property of the Bartenders' Club."

Looz, he continued, had said he had been to see Nedderman at his office many times. But Corporal Coley had seen him there but two or three times. He referred to the letter to the district attorney to Nedderman regarding gambling which he had several times before the jury during the case.

This defendant swore on the stand that he had showed this letter to Looz, but not that Cockrell, as Looz said, had shown it. Why didn't they bring Looz back to refute that statement? "I'll tell you why: They did not want to bring him back. They were tired of Looz. He had played his part in this trial. And later when Nedderman had accused Book of not bringing him back either, and he did not dare to come back and face this cross-examination again after the 'damnable part he had played in this case.'"

Continuing with regard to the letter he said Looz had testified he saw in April when Senator Eddie Grant was here, despite that the letter was dated in September. Crosby said that evidence with regard to his alleged meeting with Nedderman in Edvin's cafe, showing that before the grand jury Looz had testified to portions of conversation there with Nedderman which he did not mention on the witness stand in this trial.

SAYS THEY SENSED CONVERSATION LACK.

"The prosecution had meanwhile," he charged, "become cognizant of the ridiculousness of a situation in which an official and a gambler would meet, where money would be passed, and yet where no conversation would be heard. They simply had to have a conversation."

At another part of his address he exclaimed:

"These who planned and plotted this conspiracy cared for nothing but that they secure an indictment! Then Chief Nedderman would be suspended or would resign and Walter J. Petersen would step into his shoes. But those who had in charge the welfare of this city put into the office instead J. P. Lynch, whom Nedderman had placed in the responsible position in the Central district. Vice Book transferred."

Crosby's most impressive point in the afternoon argument, however, had reference to Looz's once alleged and once called payment of money to Nedderman in June, 1912.

"That month of June," he exclaimed, "rises to deny every word that Looz said upon this stand. If he could lie, as he did lie, how could he how sacred do you suppose was the truth to him when he was discussing any of the months before it or any of those after it?"

"On the witness stand here he said he did not pay in June because Nedderman was out of the city but that he did pay in July for the protection he had received in June."

"Oh, Looz! If you did pay in June for whose protection were you paying? That month, because Nedderman was away, J. F. Lynch, the present chief of police, was acting chief. Where is the man who will say that J. F. Lynch would prosecute his office so that Herman Looz might conduct his miserable gambling game contrary to the law?"

Crosby continued by reading grand jury testimony in which Looz had been asked if he had paid Ned-

WIFE TRAILS SPOUSE, FIGHTS WITH AFFINITY

The alleged affinity of Francis P. Kiff, wealthy oil operator who, it is alleged, is giving Kiff monetary aid and comforting counsel in his unfortunate plight, occupied a front row seat in Police Judge George Samuel's court today, when Kiff was arraigned on the charge of failure to provide for his wife.

Kiff was taken in custody late last night in Chicago by Police Inspector M. Sanderson after an episode of sensuality. Miss Kate Ryan, reputed to be wealthy, enjoyed a battle royal in which both participants were badly battered and their clothing slightly disarranged.

Miss Ryan was right behind Inspector Sanderson and his captive at Central Station. To keep Kiff out of the city, she reached down into a silk stocking and produced $1000 bail.

At the arraignment today, or grand jury, Kiff's preliminary examination was set for August 3.

After the arraignment the alleged affinity and the husband accused of failing to provide for his wife, left arm in arm.

Mrs. Edith Kiff, the wife, who resides at 1212 Webster street, Oakland, learned that her husband had been keeping company with Miss Ryan and went to Chicago last night with Police Inspector Sanderson, who carried a warrant.

At the doorway Mrs. Kiff sprang upon Miss Ryan and the two battled fiercely before both men could separate them.

Mrs. Kiff could not return to Oakland because she had not enough money to buy a ticket. Miss Ryan, the more affluent, left in company with Kiff and the police officer.

Northcott Demurrer Denied by Court

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Superior Judge Michael J. Roche today denied the demurrer of Dr. Ephraim Northcott that he had been placed once in jeopardy in the Mrs. Eleanor Anderson case, in which he is charged with first degree murder.

Attorney Frank Mannix, who represented Northcott, argued that a previous grand jury having refused to indict Northcott on this crime the resubmission of the case to a later grand jury could not legally be made by District Attorney Charles M. Fickert without a court order. Judge Roche overruled and the case was set for next Saturday to be set.

Nedderman in "January, February, March, April, May, June, July and August," to which question Crosby read his answer of "Yes."

Looz's statement on the stand that he had made no income tax return came in for a scoring at Crosby's hands. Crosby scoffed at the allegation of Looz that he had not made enough to warrant his returning the statement and footed up the grand jury Looz had alleged he had made to show that they totaled $1950. "He pointed out the fact that Nedderman was performing his duties as police chief at this time of war stress and during the influenza epidemic while Looz, he said, 'was wasting dirty dollars from the men Nedderman was seeking to protect.'"

The money in sight at the Bartenders' Club when Chief Nedderman and Captain Lynch visited the resort, Crosby read from the record to show was Jack Woolley's. This, he said, was the connecting link which bound Woolley to the conspiracy against his defendant.

"That," he exclaimed, "unavoidably draws together in this plot Jack Woolley and Captain Book and their friend, Captain Petersen, for whose return to the city they were so earnestly waiting."

BUILDING COST OF HOSPITAL IS INCREASING

Elaboration of details for the new county hospital, proposed to be named the Highland Park hospital, according to conversation between the institutions commission, the Board of Supervisors, Architect H. H. Meyers and Superintendent P. C. Brodrick today, will bring the ultimate cost of the institution to between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000. The original scheme, when the board authorized the initial appropriation last year, contemplated $1,500,000.

Originally the plan was to construct a bungalow type of hospital, but this idea gave way to concrete construction after consideration. Since Dr. Brodrick's engagement as superintendent the details have been worked out and a much higher type of interior treatment determined upon than was before contemplated.

ECONOMY IS CLAIMED.

It is declared that the plans decided upon by the architect, superintendent and the commission will make the institution the rival of any hospital in the entire country, and effect a great saving in cost of maintenance.

The increased cost will not necessitate an increased annual appropriation for the construction, it was explained, the work being extended over an increased period of years. It is estimated that eight years will be required to finish the great undertaking, whereas five years was the original estimate.

At the present time cash in the sum of $510,000 is guaranteed by the budget, including $210,000 from last year unappropriated and $300,000 in the forthcoming budget. It is estimated that the contract for the first unit of construction, to be let in November, will call for an outlay of $700,000.

FUND DISCUSSION.

The question raised today, aside for discussion and approval by the supervisors of the improved design, was whether or not a contract calling for the expenditure of $700,000 or more, as the bids may be, could be let with only $510,000 available. The supervisors expressed the opinion, and the district attorney's office concurred in that such a contract should be let, because the work would not be finished prior to the time of making up the budget for the following year, that is, prior to July, 1920.

Dr. A. C. M. Tait, president and Joseph H. King represented the Institutions Commission at the conference with the supervisors and the latter expressed unanimous agreement with the improved plan for the construction of an institution that will endure for ages and be a monument to the consideration of the county for its citizens.

The plans for the first unit are being rushed to completion and bids will be called for within the next two or three months. In the meantime the excavations and foundation work are nearing completion, contracted for some time ago at a cost of $90,000.

Gladys Brockwell Sues for Annulment

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—Gladys Brockwell, motion picture actress, who off the stage is Gladys Edwards, today filed suit for annulment of her marriage to Harry J. Edwards, motion picture director.

The complaint revealed that she married Edwards in Seattle July 1, 1918, and they were separated three days later.

Mrs. Edwards asks annulment on the grounds that she had not secured her final decree of divorce from Robert B. Brockwell, her first husband, when she married Edwards in Seattle, although at that time she thought her marriage was legal.

$60,000 Theft Case Continued One Week

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—The case of Lieutenant-Colonel C. C. Garcia, Mexican army paymaster, who is being held here pending international extradition proceedings on a charge of the theft of $60,000 in gold from the Mexican government, was continued for one week by U. S. Commissioner Francis Krull this morning pending the arrival of evidence from Mexico.

The youth was in court but evidently unwell. A doctor's certificate was presented to the court which stated Garcia was suffering with chronic appendicitis.

Explosion Near Berlin; Eight Dead

BERLIN, July 16, via London, July 17.—Eight guards are missing and are believed to have perished in an explosion of two ammunition sheds at Hohenschoenhausen, near Berlin today. Fire followed the explosion. A communist plot is suspected, as there are evidences that the fire was of incendiary origin. Tens of thousands of mines, explosive caps and fuses were destroyed.

The terrific detonation broke windows in houses several miles from the scene of the explosion.

UNION HEADS MEET, FRAME WAGE DEMANDS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—International representatives and officers of a score of more shipbuilding trades who will submit the demands of 150,000 shipyard workers on the Pacific Coast to the shipbuilders at the conference to begin here Monday, went into executive session in the Hotel Sutter this morning. President James O'Connell of the sheet metal department of the American Federation of Labor presiding as chairman.

At this conference credentials of the delegates were submitted to O'Connell and the routine business preliminary to a meeting to be held at the Labor Temple tonight will conclude with the submission of the demands by the various international organizations in the new wage agreement which is to replace the Macy scale that expires October 1.

J. V. Ryan, who is representing the sheet metal workers and copper-smiths in the new wage agreement conference for shipyard workers, said he would make public tomorrow a statement on the situation created in the bay shipyards by the strike of 150 copper-smiths.

CONSIDER 'LOST' DOWN.
Officials of the shipyards in a conference last Monday stated they were seriously considering a complete close-down of all steel shipyards in the bay district as a result of the strike of the copper-smiths, which had already caused idleness to nearly 5,000 men.

With the arrival of Ryan here, who is secretary of the sheet metal department of the American Federation of Labor, as well as international representative for the copper-smiths, the matter is being held in abeyance pending his endeavor to settle the controversy in the local yards.

COMPETITION FOR ROLPH COMPANY

That the Gulf Mail Steamship company is preparing to meet the competition which is expected to develop with the advent of the recently organized Rolph Steamship company, which is to operate a fleet of vessels valued at $8,000,000 between San Francisco bay points and the west coast of Mexico and South America, is the announcement made yesterday by Paul Hartman, president of the Gulf Mail. This company will make a hard fight to retain its established business, according to Hartman who, in part, said:

"This company is now negotiating to take over a fleet that will give it control of one of the biggest tonnage on the Pacific coast. In addition plans are being matured to extend the service to Panama and the entire west coast of South America as far as Valparaiso.

"The officials of the Gulf Mail admit that the Mexican and west coast business is profitable and say that Rolph must have been influenced to enter the field of competition after he had chartered two ships to the Gulf Mail. Both vessels yielded a substantial profit and the announcement of the new steamship concern followed immediately.

GAMBLING BY BOYS

Complaint has been made to Commissioner F. F. She asks that the commissioner prepare an ordinance forbidding youths under 21 years old from such practices.

Mrs. Artida told Morse that she had complained of the matter to Chief of Police J. F. Lynch and had been informed by him that he was powerless in the matter as there was no law covering it. Morse has referred the matter to City Attorney H. L. Hagan.

WAR EXPERIENCES TOLD AT LUNCHEON

Accomplishments of the United States during the war and the part that this country played in making victory for the allies certain, were reviewed by Nelson G. Welburn, sergeant in a machine gun battalion, in a talk at the luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Oakland yesterday. Welburn took part in some of the fiercest battles fought overseas and told of the high morale which prevailed among the American troops, who fought like veterans and drove the enemy from territory long occupied.

Practically all the Americans who saw overseas service and are somewhat familiar with the aims and objects of the League of Nations endorse the plan, according to the speaker. He says that they see in it an earnest effort on the part of the great nations of the world to prevent future wars and give greater security to smaller governments.

For bravery in action during the Meuse-Argonne battle, Sergeant Welburn was decorated with the French Croix de Guerre and the Distinguished Service cross. The citation of the commanding officer tells how Welburn returned again and again under heavy machine gun and sniper fire to carry wounded comrades to places of safety.

His lecture tomorrow will take up typewriter identification. Next Tuesday Arthur L. Ritter will lecture on mental delinquency. Warden J. A. Johnston of San Quentin will lecture on the evening of August 1, and the criminology class later will visit the prison.

TWIN SISTERS AND MYSTERY MAN SOUGHT

On receiving word that Mary Santos, age 13, and her twin sister Carnella, daughters of a San Francisco building contractor, spent the night in a local hotel in company with a middle-aged man, who signed the register "C. O. Larkin, Santa Barbara," parents of the missing girls today appealed to the Oakland police to do everything in their power to ascertain if the girls are still in Oakland.

Every possible clue has been investigated as to the missing girls' whereabouts in Oakland, the police say, and police authorities of California were today advised by the parents to do everything in their power to get the girls away from "Larkin."

BELL BOY GIVES CLUE.
The last evidence of the missing girls' whereabouts was furnished by a bell-boy of the Hotel St. Mark who had a casual acquaintance with them. The youth said he saw the twins, riding in an elaborate "yellow roadster" in Oakland, accompanied by a man.

Suit cases were on the side of the machine and it is presumed the party was starting out on a journey. Whether Larkin, or the Santa Barbara address, indicated on the hotel register is fictitious, the police do not know. At any rate, it is believed the yellow roadster is proceeding to Southern California with the two sisters and their alleged abductor. An effort is being made to learn their destination.

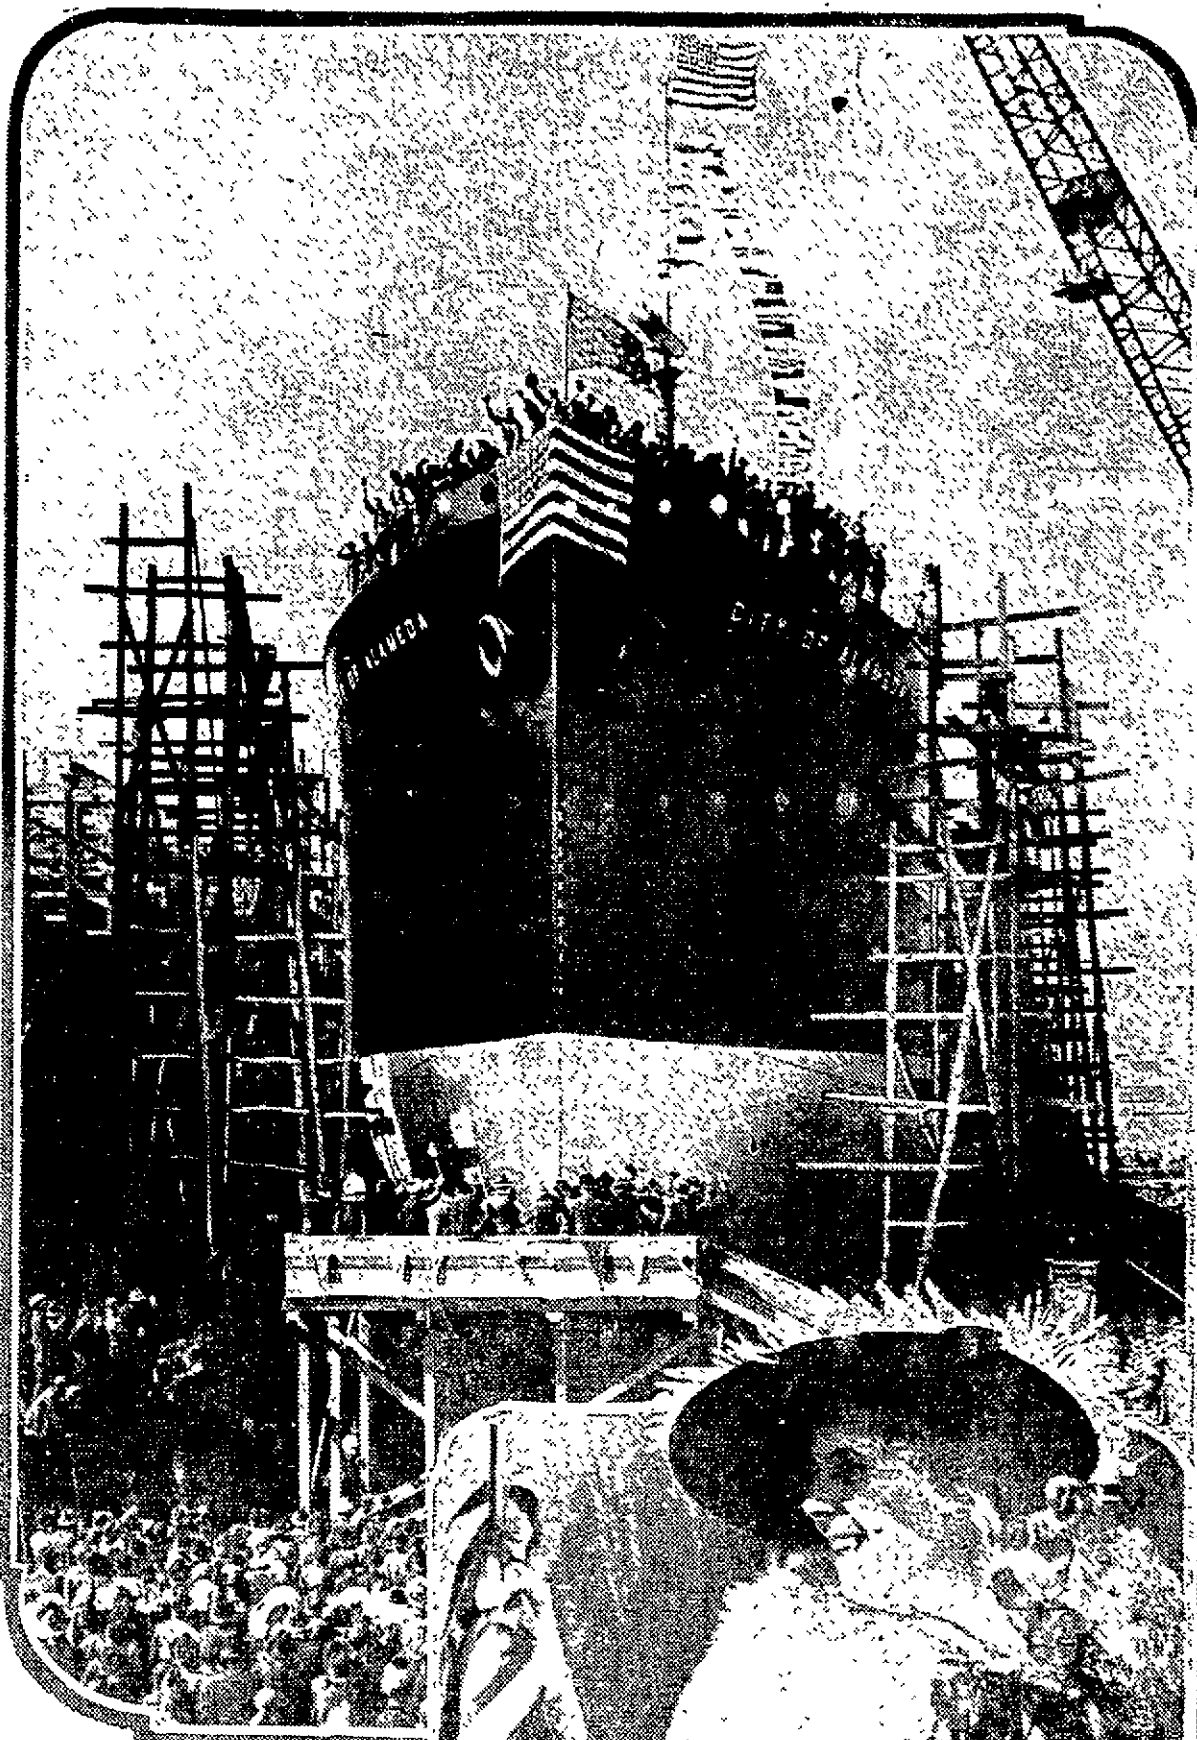

The parents of the girls do not know a man named "Larkin" and cannot account for their daughters' picking up an acquaintance with such a man. It is understood that the man posed as a salesman and that he told hotel employees the girls were his daughters.

The twins left home on July 13. Nothing was thought of their going, as they wore their school clothes. When they did not return late on the night of the 13th, the parents were alarmed. They notified San Francisco police. Police in that city traced the girls across the bay and notified Oakland police to be on the lookout.

The two Santos girls were very popular at their school. Mary is a brunette, height, five feet and weight 125 pounds. Carnella is about the same height and weighs about 130 pounds. They wore pink dresses and white sweaters and patent leather pumps.

DECLINES CABINET HONOR.
MADRID, July 17.—Eduardo Dato, former premier and foreign minister, has declined to form a ministry to take the place of that of Steamship Alameda as she was photographed just before she left the ways as representative of Alameda City's patriotism in making a Liberty Bond record. MRS. FRANK OTIS is shown as she prepared to christen the craft.

Antonio Maura, the resignation of which was announced yesterday.

ALAMEDA SHIP MARKS HONOR IN BOND WORK

ALAMEDA, July 17.—The newly launched City of Alameda is moored this morning to the fitting dock at the Alameda Bethlehem plant, receiving engine and other equipment before being ready for actual sea service. The vessel was taken to the fitting dock yesterday afternoon immediately following the launching at 3 o'clock. The new craft made an attractive picture in the stream as the tugs turned her prow towards the dock.

The launching was carried out on the exact moment set. The brief ceremonies were concluded in ample time and the Alameda Bethlehem band played two or three selections while the launching crew knocked away the restraining blocks till only the Dackie trigger held the 16,000 ton hull on the ways. Then without warning to the untitled, the hull started down the ways. Mrs. Otis, wife of Mayor Otis of Alameda, broke the bottle of wine against the prow of the ship at the first indication hull on the ways. Then without to the water. Whistles blew, the band played and the big crowd cheered.

COAST CITIES' RECORD.
Governor Jno. U. Calkins of the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank spoke briefly, telling of the proud record of Pacific Coast cities in winning the honor of naming five ships in the Liberty bond drive, Alameda being the first city of the fifth class to win this distinction.

Mayor Frank Otis served as master of ceremonies. He reviewed the achievements of Alameda in the war, told of the work of the Bethlehem plant and showed what benefit and advertising Alameda would receive when the steamer bearing the city's name appears in the great ports of the world. The mayor read the short poem describing the launching by Albert Rupp, the shipyard poet.

Following the launching City Auditor F. J. Croft presented a banner to the Alameda Bethlehem plant as a token of esteem from the citizens of Alameda. The banner was received by Fred Shepard, manager of the plant. Later the band paraded the yard, carrying the banner and playing several selections.

WON BY CITIZENS.
Calkins, as chairman of the War Loan Organization of the district extended congratulations to Alameda as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: My very small part in the ceremony of this occasion is to extend to the City of Alameda congratulations for having won the honor of naming the ship that is about to take the water."

"This is not an empty honor. I was won by the citizens of Alameda by reason of their prompt, persistent patriotism, resulting in large oversubscription of its quota of Liberty Loan bonds."

"With a view to stimulating subscription to the Fourth Liberty Loan, the War Loan Organization prevailed upon the United States Emergency Fleet Corporation to grant each of the twelve Federal Reserve Districts the privilege of naming ten ships constructed by the Emergency Fleet Corporation."

"In the Twelfth District the Publicity Committee decided to award this honor to ten cities, basing awards on percentages of oversubscription in each of five classes based upon population. This classification meant that of twenty-two cities in Class E, five were to win the honor of naming ships Alameda, Bakerfield, Eureka, Aberdeen and Reno, were the five leaders and were therefore awarded this honor."

"I am sure that all citizens of the fair City of Alameda will be agreeably reminded, whenever they see this ship bearing the name of their city or hear of it in the course of its travels upon the surface of the broad seas, of Alameda's fully established patriotic record throughout the period of what we must all hope will be the last, as it was the greatest, war of history."

Hair Tonic Soup A La Cold Cream Achilles Has a Regular Banquet

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Can you imagine how it would feel if you were allowed to enter Paradise only to be flung back to the mundane when you had just begun to revel in the bliss of the place where happiness was without end?

You can? Then sympathize with "Achilles," mammoth gourmet extraordinary who, though a goat, was "the goat" and thus ushered out of paradise. Achilles was one of a miniature menagerie maintained by Mrs. Jane Everson in a back yard on Mina street. The aggregation was termed a public nuisance Monday and when gathered up as "evidence" before court yesterday, Achilles could not be found.

Sleuths from the Southern station hunted darkly at "concealed evidence" and investigated to find and lay bare the paradise. In the next yard, the rear of a drug store, was Achilles.

Aforesaid mammothiferous had scaled the fence, found an open door, and was munching the last of a broken jar of cold cream. A hasty inventory revealed other items which included the following menu:

Salad
Miscellaneous Senna leaves
Soup
Hair Tonic
Entrée
Soap, asperin, corn plasters and gum
Dessert
Cold cream and Rochelle salts
Wines
Ray rum and grape juice
Except for a monumental grouch and the fact that the sun of the rest of the colony were visited upon him, Achilles is happy. But think of his feelings when he finds old cans and at best an old shoe must satisfy heretofore, as a heartless judge ordered him to the wilds of Tar Flat.

POLICE TO HUNT MISSING HUSBAND

Stating that she believes her husband may have been the victim of foul play, Mrs. George W. Sherman, of 1529 Second avenue, has asked the police to aid in a hunt for the missing man. She says that her husband, 52 years old, left home three days ago, and has not been heard of since.

He had a $100 Liberty Bond, several hundred dollars in cash, and jewelry worth $300, she said, when he left home. She fears he was robbed and probably injured. Mrs. Sherman says that there had been no family trouble and that she can see no reason except injury or foul play for her husband's disappearance.

WIDOW TO ASK INDEMNITY.
WASHINGTON, July 17.—Mrs. John W. Correll, widow of the American citizen who was murdered by Mexicans at his ranch near Colima, Mexico, has arrived in Washington to lay her case before the State Department and President Wilson and demand indemnity and reparation. She was accompanied by her son, Joseph, who was wounded by the bandits.

RAILROAD CLERKS ENJOY MEETING

Visiting members from nearly every division of the Southern Pacific system attended the meeting of the Oakland Lodge No. 892, Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks in L. O. O. hall, Eleventh and Franklin streets, this week. The meeting is reported to have been one of the most enthusiastic ever held by the lodge.

P. Mathews, chairman of the A. T. and S. F. (Coast Lines), system board of adjustment in a talk summed up the accomplishments of the board. Of an educational nature, the talk proved of deep interest to the members of the lodge.

H. B. Commons of Ogden vividly related the part taken by the clerks in the celebration attendant upon the fifth anniversary of the discovery of the golden spike that connected the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific, thereby establishing a transcontinental railway line. Motion pictures of the parade and the formation of the clerks were shown from start to finish.

R. Lang of Sacramento told how the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks led the labor division in the Independence Day parade at the capital and said that they received much applause along the line of march.

F. J. Taylor, of the Tucson division and L. W. Tompkins of the Shasta division both reported excellent progress. Remarks by W. W. Gurnow, president of the Oakland lodge of railway clerks, closed the meeting. It was largely through the efforts of Gurnow that the growth of the organization in this city has been so rapid. Oakland was the first local in the bay region to obtain a charter. The lodge was organized in December, 1918, and has enjoyed a steady growth, according to its officers.

AERIAL LICENSE FOR OAKLAND BOY

The name of Cloyd Pearl Clevenger, 241 E. Twenty-second street, the 21-year-old son of Mrs. P. M. Clevenger, is announced by the War Department among the 15 candidates who have been granted civilian flying licenses by the joint army and navy board on aeronautic cognizance. During the war period, the East Oakland boy enlisted for air service and was ordered to a ground school in Berkeley for preliminary work. Later he was sent to March Field near Riverside where in February he received his commission.

With a gap in the other flyers, Clevenger is interested in aerial passenger service between Coalinga and Fresno. Coalinga has been his headquarters since receiving his discharge. Clevenger is a graduate of the Fremont High School.

Second Lieutenant E. S. Norley, R. M. A., A. S. A., Pilot Master Electrician O. L. Holt and Pilot Master Electrician Lee E. Bishop in three Curtiss JN 4 D planes, flying from March Field to Fresno, are reported by the War Department to have passed the Tehachapi Mountains at a height of 8000 feet and to have traversed the distance of 300 miles in 20 minutes at a temperature of 106 degrees.

The planes are on a two weeks recruiting trip through the San Joaquin valley district.

Asks Mercy After Stolen Joy Ride

CHICAGO, July 19.—If a young man removes the hinges from a garage door, takes an automobile and gives his best girl a joy ride—

And if he does this four nights straight in one week, always putting the automobile back where it belongs—

And if he comes into court and confesses everything, but says: "Give me a chance, the girl says she'll marry me, and if you'll let me go I'll never do it again!"

What would you do if you were Judge Gemmill of Hyde Park court? He has sentenced the young man, who is a railroad switchman, to a year in the reformatory. A parole is being considered.

Seven years ago the convicted man did the same thing, riding till dawn and then putting the car back. He was warned in court at that time and kept in jail for a week.

"Don't think I do this every seven years, Judge," he pleaded. "Let me go this time and I'll get married to-night and settle down."

THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS

"SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS" AT THE ORPHEUM.

Romance, mystery, a wonderful love story, and a tender hearted appeal, and exciting mirth are blended in the "Shepherd of the Hills," Harold Bell Wright's master photograph production this week at the Oakland Orpheum.

"The Shepherd of the Hills" sets a new mark for the "big picture" production. The actor has taken his greatest work and made it into a living reality. "The Shepherd of the Hills" is actually lived as it was written. The very characters of the little world of the Ozarks are living realities. The magnificent span of the Ozarks is the stage for this play. The scenic settings ever dreamed of for a play. Here Wright took the lead in the very best of his work. In his famous book, which was, perhaps, the best seller in America's history, he chose each actor himself, according to his idea of the type he intended this or that character to be. The "Shepherd of the Hills," broke all records in San Francisco. New York, Chicago and other cities. It was an attraction; it was a play; it was a masterpiece of the art of the stage.

"WILDERNESS TRAIL" AT THE AMERICAN

"WILDERNESS TRAIL" AT THE AMERICAN.

The screen star who is the most popular of the American stage, is now appearing in a new and exciting play, "The Wilderness Trail," at the American.

The play is a story of a man who is captured by the Indians and is taken to a remote spot in the wilderness. The man is a soldier and is the only one of his kind in the wilderness. He is a man of great courage and is the only one who is able to survive in the wilderness.

There are many reasons for this. In the first place, Miss Chatterton is the foremost young woman star on the American stage. She is a girl of great talent and is the only one who is able to play the part of a girl who is captured by the Indians and is taken to a remote spot in the wilderness.

"THE PROFITERS" COMES TO T. & D.

"The Profiteers" brought Fannie Ward to the T. & D. Theater today and proved the best smashing picture of the year. It bares the conscience of the nation in a way that is not only new but also is a ten-strike for the theater which secured it for Oakland.

"The Profiteers" does not mean to go to the root of profiteering as it existed while the United States was at war. It means to show the exposure of the plundering and pilfering which existed and is still being fought in the United States.

The new program again boasts an array of features. In addition to the release of the United States of America, there is an instructive and entertaining Chester Outing. Margaret Fawcett appears in a rollicking comedy, "Charge it to Me."

BASEBALL: GUY MAKES HIT AT PANTAGES.

Look on the program of Pantages theater this evening. Guy, the star of the act, will make a hit at Pantages. He is a man of great talent and is the only one who is able to play the part of a man who is captured by the Indians and is taken to a remote spot in the wilderness.

"ROMANCE OF THE AIR" AT BROADWAY.

"A Romance of the Air" is a play in which the aviator, Bert Hall, who recently flew over Oakland, is the star. The play is a story of a man who is captured by the Indians and is taken to a remote spot in the wilderness.

"NEPTUNE BEACH HELD VACATION PARADISE."

Neptune Beach is proving the vacation paradise of the summer. The beach is a place of great beauty and is the only one who is able to play the part of a man who is captured by the Indians and is taken to a remote spot in the wilderness.

Wife Tires of Her Life on Boathouse.

KANSAS CITY, July 19.—The trail of civilization and the comfort incident to residing in a dwelling or apartment chafed and annoyed her husband to such an extent that he took her to a boathouse on the Blue river, where he insisted they should dwell.

For that reason and others, Mrs. Helen M. Caywood, 716 Highland avenue, says a petition in the circuit court today, that she is entitled to a divorce from her husband, George Caywood.

"He objected to paying rent or for light, water, gas and other conveniences when it was possible to reside on the river without annoyance and expense of these refinements," the wife's petition recites.

The wife charges that she was compelled to carry water more than a block and to do rough and unusual domestic work to which she was not accustomed. Her husband's sole contribution to her wardrobe since their marriage was one skirt, the wife charges. The petition states the couple were married July 20, 1918, and separated the following October.

Mrs. Cary Married to Belgian Minister.

PARIS, July 17.—Mrs. Hamilton Cary of New York and Baron Emile de Cordier de Marchienne, Belgian minister to the United States, were married here today. Hugh C. Wallace, American ambassador, and Herbert Hoover were among those who attended the ceremony.

Mrs. Cary is a daughter of Joseph Emery Dow of Boston.

POTATOES HIGHER THAN IN 1850

Potatoes are marketing today at the rate of $1.75 for a forty-pound bag, but this startling monetary consideration fades into nothingness beside the price paid by the bay cities' citizens in the glorious '30s, when Oakland didn't boast of bank clearings and other communities of the neighborhood boasted of nothing at all. From the yellowed leaf of an old journal, unearthed here today, are contained the faded ink lines which tell of the high and low cost of buying potatoes in the old days.

According to the mute testimony from the past, a wild desire seized the San Francisco bay communities to raise potatoes. Men, formerly interested only in winning fortune from gold-bearing ore, turned their efforts into potatoes; citizens became obsessed with what at first had been a hobby; speculators turned from their mines to the tubers; everywhere the potato-growing habit spread.

The keeper of the journal, probably the first home gardener on the coast, wrote in 1858, his observations on the potato situation, brought about several years previous. An excerpt from the book follows:

"The potato-growing fever then set in, and raged like the gold mania. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were invested in the potato crop. Fifteen cents per pound was paid for seed potatoes and $100 per month paid each man to fence and prepare the land and attend to the crop. The result was that the markets were glutted, the price of potatoes went down to the cost value of the sacks that contained them, and hundreds of thousands of tons of the finest potatoes in the world dug and gathered into large cribs lay and rotted, creating such a nuisance that it was feared they would breed a pestilence in some locality. A friend offered a man his crop if he would take it away. 'Oh,' replied the man, 'I can do better than that. I can get there on the same terms nearer home and save the freight!' Another man lost $30.00 on a single crop of potatoes."

GRADE RESTORED TO ADMIRAL BLUE

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Secretary Daniels has set aside the verdict of the navy court-martial which sentenced Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman to dishonorable discharge for his part in the loss of ten millions in his grade and has restored him to his proper place on the navy list. The trial resulted from the standing of the dreadnaught Texas, which he commanded, on Block Island, in September, 1917.

This was made known coincident with announcement that President Wilson has approved Admiral Blue's retirement from the navy for physical disability upon recommendation of a board of medical survey. Daniels acted largely upon the recommendation of Admiral Blue's former superior, Admiral Hugh Rodman, who during the war was in direct control of the Texas which Rear Admiral Blue commanded.

Oregon Woman Acknowledges Her Indebtedness to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Her Health

"When a woman has been anemic a large part of her life and has finally found a remedy that restores her strength and happiness, I think it her duty to tell others what has helped her," says Mrs. Clara Winters of R. D. 2, Box 442, Milwaukee, Oregon.

"I had suffered from anemia as long as I can remember," she says, "and some time ago I began to feel run down. I lost ambition for my work and was tired all the time. For days in succession I wouldn't care about eating and when I ate to a good meal my stomach was upset and I suffered from headaches and was very nervous."

"My mother read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a newspaper and she insisted that I try them. I procured a box and after a few days after starting the treatment my appetite improved and then gradually I regained my strength. My color is much better now and I am ambitious and active. I owe my health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and have told many of my friends about the remedy."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or direct from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., at 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, postpaid, on receipt of price. Write for the free booklet on nervous disorders and how to eat and how to eat."

BRITONS URGED TO PAY WAR DEBT

LONDON, July 17.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—A wealthy man of London, who signs himself simply as "F. S. T.," has written to one of the newspapers declaring his intention to subscribe to the Victory Loan in the sum of $750,000 and then turn the bonds back to the government for immediate cancellation.

"By a natural reaction not unlike that which led to the excesses of the restoration after the reign of the Puritans," writes F. S. T., "all classes are in danger of being submerged by a wave of extravagance and materialism."

Y., and for whom a nation-wide search has been conducted for two years, appeared at the police station several days ago, police officers have just disclosed. The woman appeared, just disclosed, to prevent the exhaustion of a body wasted up by the ocean here more than a year ago and which Batavia attorneys believed might be that of Miss Douglass.

The woman refused to give any information as to her disappearance and failure to correspond with relatives in New York who were seeking her.

PACKARD SUFFERS TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

Los Angeles Man Says Tanlac Restored Him to Health

"I tried for twenty-five long years to find a medicine that would relieve me of my suffering, but all my efforts failed completely until I got hold of this Tanlac," said Alonzo Packard, a well-known cabinet maker employed at the American Novelty Works, and lives at 122 West 28th street, Los Angeles, a few days ago.

"During all these years," he continued, "my stomach was in such bad condition that everything I ate disagreed with me. I would often be so bloated up with gas that I was hardly able to get a good breath. My appetite was very poor and what little I did eat didn't seem to give me any nourishment at all, and I just went down hill all the time. I tried a great many different medicines and treatments, but I just seemed to get worse all the time instead of better.

"Then I decided to see what Tanlac would do for me, and I just want to say now, that from that time on I didn't have to bother about any other medicine, for I commenced to improve right from the start, and now I am as well and hearty as I ever was in my life. I never have that tired, worn out feeling any more, and my stomach troubles have been completely overcome. I have a ravenous appetite and eat just anything I want, and I never suffer the least bit afterwards. I am in better condition generally than I have been in many years. Yes, sir, I am seventy years old and have taken a great many different medicines in my life, but this Tanlac beats anything I have ever tried. I am glad to have the opportunity to recommend it to everybody.

Tanlac is sold in San Francisco and Oakland by The Old Drug Company stores.—Advertisement.

INCREASE WEIGHT AND VITALITY WITH PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

The average person is beginning to realize more and more that the lack of physical strength and nerve exhaustion (frequently evidenced by excessive thinness) are the direct cause not only of the failure to succeed in life's struggle for the necessities of existence, but also for the handicap in one's social aspirations. Compare the thin, sickly, angular frame with the well-rounded form which is usually accompanied by the bloom of health and attractiveness.

That millions of people are conscious of this handicap is evident from the countless appeals in newspapers and magazines of many suggestions promising various remedies in food or medicine or exercise, either of which might or might not be appropriate for a given case.

Authorities, however, agree that healthy nerve tissue is absolutely essential to a strong, robust body and that weak nerves, while indicated by a multitude of different symptoms, more immediately and generally result in lack of energy, sleeplessness, irritability, depression, etc., which conditions gradually consume the healthy flesh, leaving ugly hollows, a flat chest, poor rest and weary arms and legs.

Our bodies need more phosphate than most of them are able to extract from the foods we eat nowdays, and many opinions affirm that there is nothing which may be taken into the human system that so effectively supplies this deficiency as the pure organic phosphate known as bitro-phosphate and sold by The Old Drug Co. in Oakland, Cal. and all good drug stores everywhere.

The essential phosphoric food element in bitro-phosphate is absorbed by the nerve cells so soon produce a pleasing change in nerve energy and hence increased vitality and strength.

With the hundreds of nervousness, sleeplessness, lack of energy, etc., listed normal weight, with its attractive fullness, is the result of health replaces the former picture of skin and bones.

CAUTION:—Although Bitro-Phosphate is well known for the relief of nervousness and attendant disorders, owing to its tendency to increase weight, one should not expect to gain weight unless it is the desire to put on flesh.—Advertisement.

Cocoon Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. The cocoon oil shampoo (which is new and entirely greaseless), is much better. Anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can possibly injure the hair, your hair with water and rub it in. One or two spoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather comes out easily and removes every particle of dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multisil cocoon oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

Davis-Arnold Nuptials Take Place Today

A quaint setting marked by its simplicity was arranged this afternoon for the marriage of Miss Ethel Davis and Harrison G. Arnold, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Robert L. Davis in this city. Only members of the immediate family were guests and the ceremony read by Rev. E. R. Dille of the First Methodist church in Alameda. There were no attendants upon the bride or groom, but preceding the bride and groom to their places were the bridesmaids and the groomsmen, the little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilcox of Piedmont and Robert Warren and Jackson Davis, sons of Mr. and Mrs. George Crawford Davis.

Five o'clock was the hour of the ceremony, after which an informal reception and wedding supper was served. Quantities of pink hydrangea blossoms and Shasta daisies decorated the living rooms, pink and white being the color scheme followed out.

Miss Davis was married in an embroidered gown of white net made over pale pink and carried a shower bouquet of old fashioned blossoms. The bride is well known in Oakland social circles and is a member of the Alpha Sigma sorority.

Harrison Arnold is a member of a prominent Sacramento family. After a motor trip the couple will return to Piedmont to make their home.

Hayward to Vote on $40,000 Bond Issue, Providing For Three Municipal Projects

WATER, SEWERS AND CITY HALL ARE PROPOSED

SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.
HAYWARD, July 17.—After discussions extending over five months, the Hayward board of trustees last night agreed to pass a joint resolution of intention to take steps to acquire municipal water system, a town hall, and to make certain improvements which have been proposed at the mouth of the town sewer.

All of these propositions are to be cared for by funds raised from a bond issue which will be brought before the people of Hayward at a special election to be held some time in September. While provision for the purchase of a city park is also urged by the Chamber of Commerce, from the discussions of the trustees at the regular session last night, it seems doubtful if this proposition will be included on the bonding ballot.

Briefly, the propositions to be voted on are as follows:

1. Acquisition of a municipal water system. No decision has as yet been reached by the trustees whether to purchase the system of the Hayward Water company on its price of $100,000, or to install a new system at a cost of $250,000, although this is expected to be decided before the date for the bond election is set.

2. Improvement of the sewer system by elimination of the Bowbeer gooseneck. The main drainage line which carries the sewage from the town limits to the bay near San Lorenzo, has an upward curve at its lower extremity which fills with tide water and interferes with the drainage. Funds for the elimination of this evil are to be provided if the bond issue carries.

3. Construction of a town hall. If this section of the ballot carries, a town hall to cost about $40,000 will be constructed immediately on the town plaza. In this provision would be made for offices for the town officials, a city jail, and an assembly hall for community meeting purposes.

At the meeting last night, it was decided to invite architects to submit plans for a town hall to be discussed at a future meeting.

Merchants Protest Business Licenses

RICHMOND, July 17.—A protest against the plans of the city council to levy a business license on Richmond stores was made by the Merchants' Association of this city last evening. The license was removed two years ago at the request of the association.

Sitting as a board of equalization, members of the city council have been discussing the matter for the past two weeks. They agreed that the loss made by the closing of the saloons must be made up in some way.

A. C. Burdick, president of the Merchants' Association, was notified last evening that the council would give the protest a thorough hearing within the next week.

RICHMOND BUREAU.
RICHMOND, July 17.—After receiving dozens of requests for the establishment of a soldiers' and sailors' bureau in this city, an office of the War Camp Community Service was opened at 322 Sixth street yesterday afternoon. Requests for a move of this kind have been made at the various social organizations and business houses for the past month and the plan was taken up at the meeting of the city council two weeks ago although no definite action was taken.

The organizer of the new office is L. B. Williams, who has spoken on soldier and sailor problems before. Williams said last evening that anyone connected with the service or recently discharged may receive any information needed at the new headquarters.

Judge Hiram E. Jacobs has been named as chairman for the Richmond War Camp Community Service. L. J. Young is the treasurer.

Tonight at a meeting of the local branch of the American Legion, Williams will address the men on the benefits of co-operation between the two organizations.

That the telephone strike may be discussed, a mass meeting of striking operators and strike sympathizers has been called for Friday night at the Lincoln auditorium.

A welcome-home for returned service men will be held at the Richmond Clubhouse Saturday evening. The guests of the evening will be sixty-four members of the lodge who have served during the war. The Reimann lodge claims distinction of being one of the few lodges that was represented by more than three-fourths of its members serving the colors during the war. In northern times the Richmond branch of the Reimann organization was composed of ninety-four members.

The event Saturday evening will be the third one of its kind held by the Reimann lodge since the signing of the armistice. The celebration has been announced as an all night affair.

A permit for remodeling of the Pulse Brothers store at Sixth street and Macdonald avenue was granted by Building Inspector L. Wierda yesterday afternoon. The store will be changed with an expense of $2000.

Permit for the construction of three cottages were also granted. A total of $8500 in permits was issued.

Andrew J. Hanson, recently discharged from the army after seeing active service in France, arrived home yesterday and is now residing with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick, 459 Tenth street.

Interest of the Richmond Elks is being turned to the two big celebrations to be held this month. On Tuesday evening a special gathering will be held at which a portion of the latest census will be initiated. On that night the organization will also extend an informal reception to Major C. L. Abbott, past exalted ruler, and also to the returned service men who are members of the lodge.

A dance and entertainment for the members and families have been set for the evening of July 26. The summer vacation of the lodge will start at the end of the month and continue until the end of August. Besides these entertainments a plan is being made for a celebration at Martinez during the month of September or October at which members of the Richmond lodge will also participate. Exalted Ruler H. E. Jacobs has appointed the following committee for the event:

Charles M. Bulmer, George O. Meese, A. McManis and J. H. Hanna from Martinez; Percival J. Neal, T. M. Carlson, A. A. Alstrom, Charles D. Horner and Robert Everhart from Richmond.

Following two years of service in French forests, Duncan Dunning 18th home with his parents at 252 Sixteenth street. He arrived yesterday in the best of health.

Dunning graduated from the local high school. He was connected with the lumber department in France and witnessed the construction of many buildings used by the Americans and French.

The Pipe and Carpenter teams of the Standard Oil Twilight League will meet in a game of baseball at the Macdonald avenue grounds this evening. Beside the regular feud, a band concert has been arranged and a dancing contest will also be promised the fans. Both teams are serious pennant contenders and have been playing good ball of late. Preparations are being made to handle the largest crowd of the baseball season.

BOARD IGNORES OFFICIAL ORDER

VALLEJO, July 17.—Notwithstanding the fact that a written order was received by the board of education at the meeting Tuesday evening from Dan H. White, superintendent of schools of Solano county to reinstate Carl H. Nielsen as principal of the Vallejo high school, two members of the board failed to take action on the motion made by Director Mark T. Andrews to carry out the instructions as received from White, and the proposed instructor will undoubtedly be compelled to appeal to the courts if he expects to teach at the Ohio street institution of learning during the coming term.

The majority of the board is acting under instructions from the attorney general.

STREET PAVING DEPENDS ON SINGLE VOTE

SAN LEANDRO, July 17.—Whether or not Parrott street, a short street extending from Washington avenue to the Southern Pacific railroad tracks, will be paved in spite of the protest of a large number of the street's property owners hinges on the way Town Trustees Parley B. Granger votes at the next meeting of the town trustees on Monday night.

A resolution of intention to pave the street was passed by the trustees at a regular meeting two months ago, along with similar action on several other streets in the downtown district. Parrott street and the other streets which are being paved, are the only downtown streets which have not been paved.

At the last meeting of the trustees a large delegation of property owners on Parrott street appeared, protesting against the action in paving the street at this time. A long, warm debate followed in which Trustee C. Q. Rideout emphatically took the part of the property owner protesters.

Trustees Geisenhofer, Pelton and Toffelmier stood their ground through the debate and insisted that the original paving resolution be upheld. Trustee Granger alone refused to express an opinion in the matter.

Ordinarily the favorable vote of Geisenhofer, Pelton and Toffelmier would have passed the action but where formal protest is filed by property owners, four of the trustees must favor an action before it can be passed. The final result will not be known until the council meeting on Monday evening as Trustee Granger refuses to make any statement concerning the way in which he will cast his vote.

The ceremony was performed in San Jose today, the couple matroning from this city. The bride has resided in this city for some time and during her residence here has made a host of friends. The groom is the son of Winnifred Coats of the city and "Bob" Coats, now with the army of occupation in Germany. He has been department manager for the L. M. BOND ISSUE FOR HARBOR WORK URGED

SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.
RICHMOND, July 17.—In order that work on the inner harbor may be continued the Richmond harbor commission is preparing to propose a $400,000 bond issue at the next meeting of the city council on Monday evening. Plans are being made to show good reasons for the request and members of the commission are preparing to show the city council the value of having the work of the harbor continued.

According to Harbor Commissioner H. A. Johnston, the United States government has already spent $100,000 on the harbor besides the same amount spent by the city. If the harbor is to be used, at least $100,000 more will be needed to carry it through this fall, but on account of the trouble and additional time spent in launching extra bond issues a plan is being made for the issue of $400,000 worth of bonds which is estimated as the amount needed for the remaining improvements.

About two months ago a 280-foot channel out to deep water was completed at Ellis landing at the mouth of Tenth street. However, the complete plans made by Colonel Reese, former governor, is being made for a call for a 600-foot channel that should be 24 feet deep in low water. As much attention over the development of the harbor here is being shown by various companies all over the state the harbor commissioners are in hope of the bond issue carrying.

Waterfront Acreage Partition Is Ordered

Judge T. W. Harris signed a decree of partition and sale of waterfront acreage in Alameda between Oak and Clifton streets, on the bay side, owned jointly by James A. Powell and R. V. Powell, of the Powell Brothers' Construction Company, and Mrs. Laura G. Love, formerly widow of C. G. Powell, their brother.

The suit was instituted by Attorneys Donahue and Hynes on behalf of Powell Brothers, who were some time ago unsuccessfully sued by Mrs. Love, as administratrix of the estate of their brother, for large sums claimed to be due the estate. The court found that each of the brothers owned an undivided one-third interest and that James A. Powell and Mrs. Love owned the other one-third. A sale of the property was ordered because it was found it could not be divided without loss.

Bunt Cohen, War Hero, Is Home Decorated by General Pershing

Bunt Cohen, the first American to escape from a German prison camp, the soldier who drew for the intelligence department of General Pershing in Paris the plans of the fortifications at Metz which were used successfully in blowing up the ammunition stores and railroad at that point, the private who was decorated with the Croix de Guerre by General Pershing himself, slipped quietly into town a few days ago where he joined his mother, Mrs. I. E. Cohen, at the Harrison apartments. Cohen is an Oakland native.

"I've come back and I'll never leave here again," he declares. "Oakland looks good to me." Cohen has been one of the interesting figures of the way he enlisted with the 319th Engineers in the spring of 1917, and was sent to Camp Fremont for training. Later he was ordered to Washington Barracks and within three months from his furlough to the home folk was in a French camp. His story parallels that of scores of other local boys with the engineers until Cambrai was reached.

JEERED AND TAUNTED. The engineers fought desperately with picks and shovels, and at the end, Cohen, with fifteen others, including Pat O'Brien, found themselves in a German prison camp at Metz, where they were jeered and taunted and fed atrocious food. Cohen rebelled. He was put in a cell, isolated from his companions. He tells the terrible tale of a Frenchman whom the Germans had held for four years in a dungeon separated from all others, where daylight never pierced. "He had five pins," says Cohen. "It was all that saved his reason. He would toss them up in the dark and hunt for them. When the guard brought it on the night of July 17, 1918, the young American soldier, who is very slight, seized his wrist, obtained the key, cut off his first freedom in four months. He killed two guards before the way was clear for his escape. He dressed himself in the German uniform and for fifteen days tramped the miles which he had between him and the American forces. He went all alone and by night.

LIVED ON HERBS. He had no food save the herbs, water, gum of trees and sour grass which he found through the forests. It was a mile and a half across the Moselle river, but the Oakland man swam the great distance. His escape was cut off by a machine gun which wounded him in the leg. He landed in Normandy where the Fourth division of marines gave him refuge. Cohen was sent to Base Hospital No. 17 and as soon as he was able was transferred to Paris. What information he had obtained he gave to the intelligence department.

GIRL STOWAWAY ARRIVES IN S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—A woman stowaway arrived via the Pacific Mail steamer Venezuela from Honolulu in Miss Josephine Weil, 19, the daughter of Richard A. Weil, a wealthy contractor and capitalist of Peoria, Illinois.

Unable to obtain accommodations on the steamer after she had learned that her soldier fiance was returning from France and would arrive in Peoria next Sunday, Miss Weil disregarded the entreaties of her mother, got aboard the vessel and remained in hiding in a linen compartment until the vessel was far out at sea, when she paid her passage. Miss Weil obtained a ticket on the Overland Limited and will leave here at once for her home.

How 'much of this water' did you use?

Staggering totals are routine with a water company. To the average person, however, to say that during 1918 this water company filtered and sterilized water in sufficient quantity to give slightly over five gallons of pure drinking water to each person in the world—sounds a bit exaggerated.

During 1918, 6,721,183,000 gallons of water were filtered and sterilized for consumption in the East Bay cities.

The average daily consumption of water in the East Bay cities at this time, served by the East Bay Water Company, is about 21,000,000 gallons. In twelve months East Bay residents use enough pure water to supply over five gallons to each person in the world—a big drop of water.

To give such extensive pure water service, this company operates nine filtration or sterilization plants: at San Leandro, Temescal Lake, Wildcat Creek, Piedmont Reservoir No. 1, Alvarado, San Lorenzo, One Hundred Second Avenue, Ninety-second Avenue, and Fitchburg.

Every drop of water used, first goes through one of these plants, and reaches you in a condition of absolute purity.

LANDLADY WINS OVER EX-TENANT

Life in a tenement makes up in excitement what it lacks in luxury, according to the evidence in the suit of L. D. Phelps, tenant, against Mrs. Mary Wolf, landlady, before Justice of the Peace Harry W. Fulcher. Phelps sued the landlady for damages claimed to have been suffered by him because of her disturbance of the peace and quiet of his home, and she countered with a suit for the rent. Judgment went in favor of the landlady, who was able to show that the damages Phelps claimed to have suffered as her hands were off by the way he caused her.

According to the evidence Phelps was a careful payer, who had misgivings as to whether his landlady was regular in paying her rent to the owner of the place. He made investigations and found that she was not over punctual. Thereupon he refused to pay her. She turned off his gas and he turned it off again. She thereupon turned it off again and fixed it so it would no longer illuminate his abode and warm his feet. That he moved, and after he had settled again underneath a vine and fig tree that cast a more congenial shade he summarized his inconveniences and sued her for damages.

Other tenants testified that while he was in the house, Phelps, as well as Mrs. Phelps, often destroyed the tranquility of the place by the language that is taboo in polite circles, furnishing the landlady justification for locking the bath against him and otherwise inconveniencing his comfort.

"Just return everything!" I moaned. I returned, proudly, and showed slowly to the Lillian the problem of how I could possibly get into the city within the next hour or two.

"I know it was imperative," Lillian said having immediately addressed the spy who had posed as the Lillian and whose attempt to enter her library by the secret entrance had only been foiled by my pouring acid over his hand.

"I'll enter abruptly as I entered the kitchen," where is M. Acahath?"

"In her room," Kiatie answered.

"Where? There was a half-sold note in her voice, distinct as tears on her cheeks. I suspected that Cousin Acahath had seized the opportunity to enter the room, listening for William to hector Karian. But I hadn't time to straighten out matters now.

"Where is she? Who will be there the next five minutes?" I asked, ignoring the trouble signals flaming Kiatie's tear stained cheeks.

"Rather badly," she answered calmly.

"Really?" "Katie's absence from her room," she thought, "will not upset her. She wishes to see you. I must caution you not to tell her anything about the accident."

"William's accident? Things like that annoy her and retard her recovery."

"I am not likely to speak of any accident," she said, "and I shall be perfectly cold," and went up the stairs to Mother Graham's room. Secretly, however, she was relieved that Cousin Ann had not given her malicious desire to make her what she called a "retail" to

FILM STAR WILL FIGHT WIFE'S SUIT

The romance that brings a halo about motion picture heroes doesn't appeal one bit to Harry Carey, wife of the cowboy celluloid champion, who has begun suit for divorce, temporary permanent support, costs of her suit and attorney's fees. The wife, Alma Fern Carey, names Olive Fuller Golden, cinema artist, as co-respondent, according to motion picture news is the bay cities, claiming that the defendant and his alleged companion are living together at Sausalito, Southern California.

That Carey will fight the suit and enter a general denial was hinted at by Harry L. Dunnigan, the star's attorney. He has until Saturday to answer the complaint. Dunnigan said that the defendant and the plaintiff had not lived together for some time. Mrs. Carey admits that she has been receiving $50 weekly from the movie star, but considers that sum insufficient to her needs. She alleges that Carey earns $200 weekly.

Attorney Rex Hardy, acting for the plaintiff, points out a restraining clause, which requests prevention of a disposal or encumbrance of community property. Bank account, a ranch house, an automobile and Liberty and Victory loan bonds are mentioned as common property.

Jordan; treasurer, Minnie Nederman; outside sentinel, Clara Ulrich; inside sentinel, Alice Berthold; organist, Jennie Brown; trustees, Emma Munson, Harriet Emerson, Louise McCutcheon.

POSTMASTERS NAMED. WASHINGTON, July 17.—President Wilson today sent to the Senate nominations of about 300 postmasters. They included: California—Ambrose E. Denner, Merced; George E. Kirby, San Luis Obispo.

BROKER ACCUSED BY DIVORCEE SAN FRANCISCO NEWS WOMAN IS STOWAWAY ON SHIP

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Charged with failure to provide for a minor child, Jay Allen Fiske, broker and widely known in the commercial districts of the bay cities, is under arrest. Mrs. Bradley V. Sargent, Jr., Fiske's first wife and widow of Judge Bradley Sargent's son, brought about his arrest. She charges in her complaint that the father of nine-year-old Jay Allen Fiske, Jr., had failed to provide $25 a month maintenance.

The little boy is in the custody of his mother at the Sargent home, 7 Third avenue. Fiske remarried shortly after the divorce of divorce was granted and is father to two children of the second union.

After a year's courtship, young Sargent married Fiske's divorced wife January 17, 1918. With the Eleventh Field Artillery he served as a lieutenant in France, meeting his legal wife serving the guns in the Argonne.

When news of the young husband's death reached the wife she became ill and has remained under a physician's care ever since. Judge Sargent, her father-in-law, brought the first husband's alleged failure to provide before the law at the instance of the first wife, who claims that he refused to provide for the child. Aside from that, the wife claims, he owes her $1500 alimony. Sargent, the dead lieutenant, was well known in the bay district. He was a Stanford graduate.

TORTURE OF PRISONERS BY JAPANESE IS TOLD.

That Japanese aggression in Korea brings the rising sun empire into Germany's class is the claim made by Miss M. D. Meyer, missionary, author and lecturer on the Far East. Miss Meyer arrived recently from Korea and is on her way to Washington, D. C. Meyer charges Japanese troops in the Hermit Kingdom with lashing the bodies of political prisoners, imprisoning men, women and children on a pretext that they are enemies to Japan and withholding Christian worship throughout Korea. Of the 35,000,000 people in the land, according to Meyer, 3,000,000 are of the Christian faith.

Thirty lashes a day for three days is the sentence imposed by Japanese police officials on Koreans who are arrested. Hundreds of political prisoners still languish in jail, she says, though arrested many months ago. No trials have been accorded them. This alleged condition has prevailed in Korea since early March, according to the lecturer, when Koreans began organized and individual campaigns against Japanese occupation and rule.

HONOLULU SEARCH GIVES NO NEW CLUE.

Relatives and friends of Miss Frances Ash are anxiously awaiting word from Honolulu regarding her fate on Waikiki beach, where it is thought that she met her death under the long, rolling breakers. The trace of Miss Ash has been discovered. Cabled reports are that soldiers, police and volunteer workers have searched intensively for many days.

Miss Ash has been identified as a volunteer war worker and a former yeomanette in the Twelfth Naval District offices here. The girl's mother and father are in Medford, Oregon, at present, where he is interested in realty. Ash is a commission merchant here.

Ten days ago Frances Ash disappeared from the Seaside Hotel in Honolulu. Her sister immediately began an island-wide search for the young woman. She was ill at the time of her disappearance. All her clothing has been accounted for except a bathing suit, and it is thought that the girl met her death in the waves, which are unusually vigorous at this time of the year.

FINDS ROOM ON BOARD WHEN PASSENGER RESCUED.

When Miss Josephine Weil of Peoria, Ill., wants to go anywhere she goes. This is the lesson shipping officials learned of late, following their firm refusal to book the young woman as a passenger from Honolulu. Miss Weil's father, an Illinois manufacturer, is ill. He cabled to Honolulu, where his wife and daughter were enjoying the hula and other Hawaiian institutions.

Miss Weil, anxious to see her parents, endeavored to secure passage. All boats were filled up. Money couldn't buy accommodations. So Miss Weil decided to stow away. She did—on board the Venezuela, which reached this port yesterday.

She snuggled into a ventilator, coming out after the boat was at sea.

The captain endeavored to have her taken back to Honolulu by passing vessels. Impossible. Miss Weil is on her way to Peoria and her father.

WAGE INCREASE BUT MONEY IS LACKING.

Although the Board of Supervisors unanimously favor granting $5 a day to Municipal street railway carmen, nothing has been done, according to those who know, to raise the funds. The $5 a day rate has been voted upon favorably but the funds to meet this increase are not forthcoming.

It is doubtful, for this reason, if the men will be paid the extra money next Monday when they appear for their semi-monthly wages. According to President T. A. Reardon of the Board of Works, the supervisors have voted for an increase in the daily wage of municipal platform men, but have not provided legal means for bringing forth $10,247 from the public moneys. This sum is the total increase of carmen's wages.

A deficit will result from the additional expenditures, say car officials. Whether the fares are to be increased to 6 cents to meet the expenditures or whether the money will be taken from the 13 per cent depreciation and accident fund is a question as yet unsettled.

HAD $15,000 BUT LIVED ON CHARITY.

Living for many years as a poverty-stricken old woman and dying as she lived, Mrs. Julia Allen, 67 years of age, left behind her $15,000 on deposit at a local bank. It became known today. The charity of neighbors had supposedly kept her from starvation and Mrs. Clay Hutchins, owner of the building at 75 Pond street, gave her a tiny basement room, rent free. She cooked her own meals and lived scantily on food brought her by her neighbors.

NURSE ENABLE TO BLOCK SUICIDE EFFORT.

Despite the frantic efforts of his nurse, Miss Mary Masten, to save him, Frank McCune, a Woodland farmer, succeeded in his second attempt at suicide yesterday when he jumped over a balcony on the fifth floor of the University of California hospital. Miss Masten grasped the madman by one leg just as he hurtled over the railing but his weight was too much for her strength and he fell to his death. One month ago McCune attempted suicide at Woodland, following which his wife brought him to San Francisco for medical treatment. Yesterday relatives had him adjudged insane and brought about his commitment to an asylum.

SUPPLY OFFICER IS GIVEN SERVICE MEDAL.

For his efficient work in supervising the handling of $5,000 worth of goods intended for government use during the war, Major-General Carroll A. Devoe, supply officer for the Thirtieth Army, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, it became known today. The zone of supervision comprised California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, and Idaho. Supplies were obtained for Hawaii, the Philippines, Alaska and the Siberian A. E. F.

BELL IN MOVE TO STOP U. S. WINE SEIZURE

Attorney Theodore A. Bell, representing the wine grape growers, has filed another suit in the Federal court designed to forestall the possibility of seizure of wine and wineries by agents of the internal revenue department, and asking for a restraining order to prevent such seizure pending adjudication of the issue involved.

The suit is virtually the same as a recent suit in which Ephraim Light, prominent wine maker, is plaintiff, amended to include Internal Revenue Collector Justin Wardell as a defendant. The former suit asked for a restraining order against United States District Attorney Annette Adams to prevent her proceeding to prosecute violators of the war-time prohibition pending determination of issues raised by the complaint.

The present suit is supported by affidavits of 24 wine operators and wine grape growers, who aver that they will be subjected to heavy loss if the act is enforced. Ephraim Light alleges that his property, valued at $200,000, will suffer severe depreciation. Others list their losses as amounting to $245,000 in unsuccessful experiments with wine grapes to make them marketable as grape juice.

M. F. Tarpey says it is impossible to graft raisin grapes on wine grape stock, and others declare that the value of wine grape land has depreciated from $500 to $100 an acre and that it will cost $50 an acre to grub the vines. Albert Haentze, president of the Santa Clara County Grape Growers' Association, says in his affidavit that the banks have withdrawn their support and will not lend on vineyard property, and that even the Federal loan banks have refused to lend.

Boston Decision Cheers Beer Men 2.75 Per Cent Product Held Legal

Advocates of the sale of beer having 3 1/2 per cent alcohol received encouragement today when there was received from Boston the vital parts of the ruling made there by Federal Judge Andrews in sustaining the demurrer of attorneys for a brewing company. The action is identical to that brought in San Francisco by United States Attorney Annette Adams against the Rainier Brewing Company, accused of having manufactured beer containing 2 1/2 per cent alcohol, in violation of the war time prohibition act of November 21, 1918. In his decision Judge Andrews said in part:

"The demurrer to this information raises simply the question as to whether the act of November 21, 1918, prohibits the sale of non-intoxicating beer. The government admits that the word 'intoxicating' was omitted from the information for the purpose of raising as a question of law the right to sell a non-intoxicating liquor commonly called beer. I am perfectly clear that no such strained construction should be given to this statute which was passed for the purpose of conserving the man power of the nation and to increase the efficiency in the production of arms, munitions, ships, food and clothing for the army and navy by prohibiting the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage."

It may add that the serious purpose of congress and of a large part of the voters of this country to prevent the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage ought not to be attempted to be made ridiculous by an absurd misconstruction of this statute. The demurrer is sustained. Federal Judge William H. Sawtelle has under submission a similar demurrer filed by Attorney Theodore A. Bell for the Rainier company. His decision on this demurrer is due July 22.

WETS OPEN WAR ON AMENDMENT

CHICAGO, July 17.—The Association Opposed to National Prohibition is making plans today to carry the question of the legality of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution to the United States supreme court. The association also will make a fight at the polls to defeat every legislator in all the states who voted for ratification of the national prohibition amendment.

James A. Arthur, managing director of the association, is in Chicago and has held numerous conferences with men from Illinois, South Dakota, Missouri, Kentucky and other middlewestern states. He announced that plans for the battle are in the hands of some of the foremost authorities on constitutional law.

Joseph W. Bailey, former Senator from Texas, Seavey said, has been retained as chief counsel.

Livingston Irving Gets Captain's Commission

BERKELEY, July 17.—A captain's commission in the reserve officers' corps has been received by Livingston Irving, who recently returned from France, where he was a lieutenant in the air service, piloting a combat plane. He is the son of former Mayor S. C. Irving.

Hotel Rooms Are Entered by Thief

Rooms in the St. Marks Hotel, Twelfth and Franklin streets, were entered by a thief who stole considerable clothing and jewelry, according to reports of two guests today at Central Station. Jewelry and a complete wardrobe of men's wearing apparel were taken from the room of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith. A pass key gave the thief access to the room of Mrs. Hanna Lubin. Jewelry and clothing were taken. Richard D. Rogers, 2329 East Eighth street, gave a stranger a night's lodging in his room. Rodgers awoke this morning to find himself loser to the extent of $65.

Union Plans Banquet for Labor Leader

Milton Snellings, president of the International Union of Steamfitters and Operating Engineers, who arrived here yesterday from Washington, D. C., to attend the conference of labor officials and to discuss a wage scale and conditions to govern the same for the next year, is to be a guest of Local 507 at a banquet in the Pacific building, Sixteenth and Jefferson streets, tonight. The ladies auxiliary of the local union of engineers will assist in preparing the reception. Officials of the Central Labor, Building Trades and Iron Trades Councils have been invited to attend and give talks.

News for the Housewife at Preserving Time

Here is a recipe for preserving syrup that will give you finer jams, jellies and preserves—and save you about one-half your trouble.

Instead of all sugar use only one-half sugar and one-half Karo (Red Label).

You will find this means clear, firm jelly; rich preserves with heavy syrup; and delicious jams, mellow and "fruity".

Karo is a fine, clear syrup, with a natural affinity for the juices of the fruit.

It blends the sugar with the fruit juice—brings out all the "fruity" flavor.

Furthermore, it prevents even the richest jam or jelly from "candyng".

It does away with all the uncertainty of preserving, and just about cuts the work in half.

For cooking, Baking and Candy Making Karo (Red Label) is used in millions of homes. In all cooking and baking recipes use Karo instead of sugar. It is sweet, of delicate flavor, and brings out the natural flavor of the food.

OUR OWN BUSINESS.

If there is one man in all the British Empire who should sing low and talk small in telling the United States to mind its own business; with reference to Ireland it is Sir Edward Carson. Bad grace, ignorant impropriety and gratuitous insolence never found a more apt or willing exponent than Sir Edward Carson.

Had it not been for Carson the Irish question would have been settled in accordance with the best constructive thought of Great Britain six years ago—on the basis of the Home Rule program. It might not have remained settled, but at least a wide approach to solution would have been cleared. Instead of the antagonism between Ireland and England being a state of open rebellion and armed military police it would be in a parliamentary stage where discussion between the conflicting interests would at least be possible.

But Carson put out the light of hope by himself assuming the role of rebel against the British government and unlawfully arming rebel comrades in Ulster, a crime for which, for some unfathomable reason, he has never been brought to book.

And by these misdeeds Sir Edward Carson revived that reservoir of hate for England which the millions of Irishmen in America constitute, and which is one of the saddest burdens this country has to carry. It was a dismal, foolish crime against morality and intelligence; against the governmental doctrine of majority rule and against the happiness of everybody but Carson and his confederates.

This is the man that tells America to mind her own business, the boor who in his denseness of understanding cannot perceive that America would like to be permitted to mind her own business but is prevented by such as Sir Edward Carson.

SWEDEN TURNS AROUND.

A movement has been initiated throughout Sweden for a Swedish-American foundation. Reports are to the effect that the first appeal to the people through the newspapers has met with a most happy response throughout the country. A large number of the leading men of Sweden, including educators, bankers, business men and statesmen, have become identified with the undertaking.

The idea of a Swedish-American foundation is based upon the recognized need in the Scandinavian country for closer cultural relations between Sweden and the United States. Its primary purpose will be the establishment of closer relations between the two peoples and the development of cultural, business and social sciences generally. The motives are not entirely altruistic. They are partly self-defensive. One Swedish newspaper hit at least the outer edge of the target when it laid stress on the fact that Sweden's days of self-sufficiency are over and that the nation must no longer follow paths which it is asserted have been found in many cases to be blind alleys. Apparently this is a reference to the mistaken orientation of Swedish politics and business during the war.

There will be a cordial response in this country to the Swedish-American foundation enterprise. The Swedes in the United States are decades in advance of their kinsmen across the water in recognizing the happy results of closer understanding. American Swedes have for many years been carrying on the sort of work now being discussed in Sweden. Through their chambers of commerce and civic, patriotic and cultural societies they have made measurable progress in developing closer business and social relations. Difficulties have been encountered here, but in the main they have been overcome. The hardest part of the work has been to obtain a responsive attitude in Sweden.

If a change of sentiment has really taken place in Sweden it is a forecast of happier and more advantageous relations. Sweden may be about to realize that she has stood with longing eyes toward Germany and her back to the rest of the world long enough. The area to the southward is now barren of great hopes. The broad highways of promise and development and prosperity point to other quarters.

HARD ON THE WRITERS.

Mr. Henry Ford's testimony under oath in a Michigan court yesterday in connection with his suit against the Chicago Tribune for characterizing him as an anarchist, emphasizes the whole country's good fortune through the failure of Michigan voters to send Mr. Ford to the United States Senate. He described Benedict Arnold as a writer.

If he had won a place in the Senate, this man, who admitted in the witness chair that he was an ignorant idealist, would have gone to his important duties in complete ignorance of the infamous meaning of Benedict Arnold in the history of man and the struggles for freedom. The traitor of the American revolution and the ignominious place he occupies in the memory and records of man had no meaning at all for Henry Ford. The aspirant for a place in the Senate had Benedict Arnold classified with the world's most virtuous personalities—the writers.

Of course, there is the chance that, in the same misunderstanding, he might have tried to imitate and prove worthy the great ability, the moral and intellectual integrity, the boundless vision of statesmanship, of writers. Such ambition would demean no senator. Neither would it hold the slightest danger to the nation's welfare.

But there is also the chance that in his ignorance Mr. Ford would have made the fatal mistake. However small that chance may have been, the country has done well to avoid it. And the writers! Surely a kind and wise citizenship will spare them the humiliating ignominy of accepting Mr. Ford's cataloguing of Benedict Arnold.

After twenty years of active service as the administrative head of the University of California, President Benjamin Ide Wheeler formally relinquished his duties on Tuesday. The growth and increased importance of the university during the last twenty years is the most eloquent and substantial tribute to the high order of his long administration. The university would have grown naturally, with the State, but Dr. Wheeler's contribution to its rapid development as one of the great educational institutions of the world cannot be underestimated. With the retirement of Dr. Wheeler the control of the university ceases to be centered in a single responsible authority. It is a condition that should not be permitted to exist any longer than necessary, and in view of the several months' notice the regents had of President Wheeler's retirement it would seem that it should not have been necessary at all. No hiatus in the presidency of the university should be allowed to exist for the purpose of giving an ambitious, but poorly equipped, candidate an opportunity to advance his prospects for the office.

The dirigible R-34 made the return trip from New York to England in seventy-five hours. This is only three hours more than three days for the trans-Atlantic journey. Other and larger dirigibles will be able to cut this time by several hours. The R-34 traveled at the rate of 100 miles an hour for the first 800 miles of the return trip, having a wind behind her. The next dirigible will in all probability be able to beat the record of the pioneer R-34. However, the practicability of regular transoceanic air service is the larger result of this first demonstration. The continents have been brought three days closer together for purposes of important communication, and the value of this achievement is incalculable.

The king of Saxony writes that he and the princes of his former kingdom want to take their places at the side of the former kaiser. This should be arranged. It ought to be the easiest thing in the world for those guilty of the war and its illegal ruthlessness to line up together at the bar of justice.

COST OF THE WAR.

Uncle Sam's bill for participation in the world war has now been pretty definitely computed. The gross cost to the people of the United States from April 6, 1917, to June 30, 1918, was $30,177,000,000. When the loans to allies have been repaid and investments in ships, the war finance corporation, farm loan bonds and the railroads have been liquidated, it is estimated that this sum will be reduced by 40 per cent, making the net cost of the war about $18,000,000,000.

Secretary Glass gives a statement of the war finances to the chairman of the ways and means committee of the House and the finance committee of the Senate setting forth the figures in detail. He accepts $1,000,000,000 a year as the normal expenses of the government, and by deducting this sum from the gross expenditures he arrives at what may be termed the war cost. The gross receipts of the treasury from the date of the declaration of war to the end of the fiscal year 1919 amounted to $37,862,168,482 from all sources. About 30 per cent of the revenues came from taxes and the remainder from bond sales.

Secretary Glass gives assurance that there will be no further bond flotations, although it will be necessary to issue certificates of indebtedness. But he believes that if rigid economy in appropriations is observed by Congress and there is no reduction of taxes the government will have sufficient income to meet its bills. His statement is interesting, because every citizen is anxious to know the cost of the war and how long it is likely to take to wipe out the debt. One of the important tasks confronting Congress in the near future is the adoption of a consistent and reasonable policy for debt liquidation.—Washington Post.

NOTES and COMMENT

The decision of the Boston judge, that beer which is not intoxicating may lawfully be sold, seems to leave the question about where it was. That question is, what per cent of alcohol makes beer intoxicating? It appears to be a scientific rather than a legal question, and a simple way to determine it has not yet been devised.

There are some pessimists who like to argue that not only will the League of Nations fail to eliminate war, but that there are indications that some of the proceedings of the league proponents tend to provoke it.

A despatch from Marysville is headed up, "Yuba Rooster is Honored at Feast." Sounds like some of the journalistic amenities up that way. These are sometimes fierce.

While there is to be a wholesale demobilization of army officers, the reverse is true of the navy. There are not enough of them equip that new navy, which is to be more apparent than it has been from the lookout of the Pacific coast.

The Senate is asking data on meat exportation. If information was required on the home price there would be no difficulty in supplying it at once. Such data would not have to be unearthed as a secret.

More than a third of a million American soldiers are still abroad. Taking this into account, and considering the rate at which they have been and are being brought home, the wonder grows as to how so many were got over there in the brief time between our entrance in the war and the armistice.

Here is perturbation, and possibly consternation. "House amendment to attack the right to keep liquor stored in homes." Some who have considered themselves forehanded and have cellars may find themselves up against a proposition if the amendment carries.

Palpable evidence of how Kaiserism is looked upon in Germany is afforded by the appeal of "many wealthy Prussians" for subscriptions to a fund to safeguard the kaiser from a reckoning. "Our last duty to the Fatherland is to secure the liberty of the emperor and his faithful officers." Not a hint of regret here for the progress of the world, that is not yet well over, and for which the kaiser is so largely responsible.

The Shantung incident is not only interesting but disturbing. The incidental disclosures are unfortunate in unsettling the public faith in the peace pact. There are elements that would welcome and take advantage of any hitch in the proceedings.

There isn't much satisfaction in discussing or even considering the case of the Ukiah murderer. When he murdered her in an inconceivably brutal manner. Having confessed the murder he now essays to outstretch himself for his defense by saying that he confessed through "ignorance." He is a moral monster, and his disposal is something of a problem.

There is apparent unanimity of opinion among farmers as to the daylight law. They are against it. There was a time when the farmer vote was considered the big thing in politics. Evidently there are some who scoff at this piping time.

The San Diego Union continues the amenities: "Thousands of people in San Diego know the crippled Anatole named Grouch, the property of Dr. J. Perry Lewis. When the doctor asked Grouch in the most ordinary conversational tone what he would do if he had to live in Los Angeles, the intelligent dog simply lies down and turns over 'dead.'"

The world doesn't want to be made better by force. It would much rather be happy and bad than unhappy and good.—Chico Enterprise.

News from home in the Ukiah Press: "A coroner's jury in Oakland has decided that killing a husband under certain circumstances is justifiable."

We see a silver lining on the clouds. Girls of today don't read as many silly novels as the girls of other years. But the girls of other years wore more clothes. That thought causes the silver lining to fade away. It seems that we just can't be optimistic.—Willows Journal.

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

What is to be done about Mexico? With all the rest of humanity regulated and psychologized according to the highest doctrinaire ideals of our president, are the wretched millions next door to us to be left to stew in their hell's broth of anarchy, famine and slaughter, for which our American citizens are perpetually the victims? Are we to continue watchful waiting and "sitting back and chuckling" while this perennial orgy of murder, anarchy and ruin goes on at our doors?—Santa Cruz Sentinel.

One of our subscribers took us to task this week for failing, as he remarked, to publish all that happened. It was fortunate for this particular individual that discretion occasionally demands the omission of unpleasant items. Should we publish all that is told to us we would be with the angels in about twenty minutes after our papers were mailed.—Merced Star.

A. B. Lester is a grape enthusiast. There's an acre of Thompson's seedless in his place, which is producing approximately 1200 boxes of the finest grapes ever seen in this locality. It is estimated that there are two lug boxes to the vine and there are 800 vines. These grapes are retailing at 20 cents a pound.—Holtville Tribune.

"If America is a melting pot, for there a new racial experiment is in process which would delight a Darwin could be for enough centuries to observe it—the experiment of literally mixing ancient Portuguese and pre-Columbian Indian stock with that of other European and North American peoples. Thus Brazil has outdone our political democracy in a social democracy which does not flinch at the acid test of intermarriage.

Those who do their arm-chair traveling with only the fiction romances for guides, and so conclude that Latin-America is an area of revolution and transplanted aristocracy, should read the history of that comparatively peaceful, steady, evolution of the Brazilian republic, undisturbed by revolts or important civil wars. Brazil's constitution is modeled after ours. Sometimes whole passages will be found word for word, and her plan of government is strikingly similar, even to such details as provision for a capital which some day is to be built for the purpose, as Washington was, in the central inland district, as Washington was not. Divergencies due to national temperament exist. There are no parties in Brazil, as we know them. The Latin American prefers personal leadership to abstract platforms. This opens a fascinating field for the student who would observe what fruit two racial branches will bear after being grafted on the same constitutional tree.

"Industrially Brazil has been a boom country, as growing countries are apt to be, and each boom—coffee, diamonds, rubber, dyo woods, cotton and gold—added force to the huge industrial snow ball which is rolling down to Rio from a hinterland of unknown wealth and resources almost is limitless and diverse as those of the United States.

"Note, too, on your map, that in all this vast land there are no deserts, like those of Africa; that the mighty Amazon has some 200 tributaries of which half now are navigable; and that the Amazon is but one among the roster of Brazilian rivers, such as the Negro, Madeira, the Parana and the San Francisco."

Lures and streams within a radius of fifty miles which in the past were quite out of the question are now almost anybody can go fishing now—almost everybody does. Hence the fishes become fewer and the fishermen increase.

It might be difficult to elucidate this apparent paradox—that interest in fishing grows as the sport declines—but for one fact, which is that nowadays we go fishing with other objects than merely to catch fish. It has become a desirable to be a "game boy"—to catch more fish than you have use for, to violate either in letter or in spirit the protective laws. Fishing is merely an excuse nowadays for getting out into the open. Incidentally you may catch fish, and if so your trip is complete—but if you have been in the woods for a day or a week or a month, if you have roughed it, if you have led for a while a different sort of life, if you return refreshed for your daily tasks with all the cobwebs blown out of your brain, and a new springiness in your walk—why, what difference does it make whether you bring back one or a creel full?

There's no tonic like fishing—whether you catch anything or not.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

TIME TO GO A-FISHIN'.

Here's a curious fact. As the years pass on there are fewer and fewer fish, and more and more fishermen. Our lakes and streams today, despite the best efforts of the Fish and Game Commission, probably afford a pretty poor sport compared with what the pioneers enjoyed. Then there were hundreds of fish to every fisherman. Now there are hundreds of fishermen to every fish.

HEALTH and HAPPINESS

Why Colors Have Very Real Effect on Your Well-Being

(Johns Hopkins University)
BY DR. LEONARD K. HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D.

It is now known that various colors can have a most depressing or exciting effect. Black sends our spirits down to hobbit; red is so disturbing to hospital patients that every touch of it is removed; green is restful and acts as a relief to every other shade. White, when too strong, is dazzling rather than soothing—and so on through the whole category.

For the purpose of finding out how light, heat and colors affect the body and mind, Dr. L. E. Landon of Los Angeles recently undertook extensive experiments with a group of ten young people.

Yellow seemed to arouse the ethical and emotional nature in all of the subjects. Two who were generally fretful and inclined to be quarrelsome manifested a decided tendency to be appreciable and amiable. Under yellow there was an increase of about 50 per cent in work over the normal with no reaction whatever. So satisfactory was the result that the work was continued under the yellow for six days with three hours for the first three days and four hours each the last three days. These days of four hours each left the subjects with vitality, less fatigue and certainly happier and more light-hearted than when working for two hours under the ordinary daylight.

Black seemed to introduce calmness and quietude and made the subjects rather serious. Black ceilings, black walls and windows hung with black hangings caused, as could be expected, the subjects to become sullen and melancholy; work decreased to one-half the normal, and before the time limit of two hours was completed several complained of sick stomachs.

The best results were obtained with green. More work, better work and less fatigue, even when the experiment was extended over a second week and continued for five hours daily.

Red should be eliminated for the reason that it forces activity, excites and induces to violent effort, probably even criminal tendencies, and leaves the subject irritated and fatigued.

Yellow apparently has a tendency to increase the capacity for work without much fatigue, makes the subject light-hearted and happy, but also inclines him to be mischievous and tricky.

The result of blue is placidity, seriousness and quietness. Green, undoubtedly, shows more beneficial effects than any of the other colors, giving, as it does, capacity for work and care in the execution of it, as well as in maintaining the vitality of the subject.

The reason why some colors affect us pleasantly as others so very unpleasantly is a somewhat involved one and not easy to understand, but the most satisfactory theory is that of Dr. Hering. Most colors excite in us a mixed sensation. For example, in orange, we see besides yellow, a certain amount of green and red. Still, among all the shades of yellow there is one in which we can perceive no other besides yellow. In this we have the pure yellow, and nothing else but yellow.

Every color may come in different degrees of concentration or luminosity. This is due to the fact that the production upon the eye not only of the sensation of color, but also that of what is known as the "color value." Upon the relations of these two depend the concentration or brilliancy of the color, and, incidentally its light value when used for purposes of decoration of walls.

DE VALERA REACHES S.F. TODAY

ESCORT MEETS IRISH LEADER AT CAPITAL

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Eamon de Valera, President of the Irish Republic, will reach San Francisco tonight. The work of the city's Irish community was halted today while all interest centered in perfecting plans for his welcome. There were no formal sessions of either the men's body or the women's auxiliary. The committee members rushed through with their deliberations preparing the reports which will be a significant feature of the sessions in the Civic Auditorium tomorrow.

Early this morning the official welcome committee, including Rev. Father Fitzgerald, Pennsylvania; P. J. McCue, Jr., New York; John McDonald, Montana; Major Edward Lyons, Connecticut; James O'Donnell, Minnesota; James O'Sullivan, Massachusetts; and H. McFarrow of Canada, national officers, and a large party of delegates, left in the "De Valera Special" for Sacramento where the Sinn Fein leader will be greeted and escorted to San Francisco. He will arrive at Oakland at five o'clock. Mayor Ralph D. Welton, at the Ferry Building, will meet him. The city's welcome and escort him to the St. Francis where an informal reception will be held. Members of the convention who did not join the "De Valera Special" gave the day up to pleasure, making an excursion to La Honda Woods.

The convention yesterday framed an address of welcome to the President of the Irish Republic, a part of which follows:

The unblemished career of the guest of America, his calm defiance, his romantic escapes from the jails of his body and of the spirit of his country, strike the deepest chords of Irishmen, recalling the analogous episodes in the lives of lofty leaders whose voices many of us have heard—of Mitchell, of Davitt and Parnell. They, too, were guests of America, and the tales of their lives bore those other tales of public esteem which also carry this captain of a revolution into the flux of that sympathetic American public opinion which has ever hastened to fling wide the harbor of its heart and home to the heroes of Ireland.

The mission of the President of the Irish Republic is one of humanity. He is an ambassador empowered by a united people to negotiate a treaty of good will—an unbroken defensive alliance of accord that shall enact the same moral law for all human beings under whatever flag they shall live. His message will be heard with respect and attention by his official position which are extending a gracious homage to the free people, who chose him through orderly processes of democracy to plead the cause of their young nation in the high court of American opinion.

De Valera was elected to the presidency of the Irish Republic on January 22.

LEAGUE RESOLUTION FRAMED.

A resolution on Irish freedom, and a frank expression of Hibernian opinion on the efficacy of the league of nations, will be presented tomorrow by the Resolutions committee. It is understood that the body has been carefully considering its choice of words in referring to the attitude of President Wilson at Paris and the incorporation of a paragraph in commendation of the stand taken by Senator Hiram Johnson of California.

Five Fliers Are Hurt in Accidents Two Mishaps Occur at San Jose

SAN JOSE, July 17.—Airplane mishaps injured three late yesterday and in two cases the hurts are severe.

Desperately swerving to avoid a house as his plane swooped toward the ground, Lieutenant J. M. Stanley saved himself and passenger from almost certain death but struck a tree at Sixteenth and Carlos streets and both men were badly injured. The passenger was Henry M. Garcia, a wealthy shoe dealer. He has a wealthy leg and possibly internal injuries. At the Garden City hospital today it was reported that he was resting easily.

The pilot, Lieutenant Stanley, also may have internal injuries. He was treated for severe cuts and bruises at the Columbian hospital.

The airplane used by Lieutenant Stanley was one purchased from the Canadian government and was brought here by Bob Fowler, well known aviator, for the purpose of giving exhibition flights and for taking passengers on short trips through the air. Several successful flights were made yesterday, and a number of others had been planned for today.

ENGINE TROUBLE STARTS.

"The trouble started when the plane was about 700 feet in the air," said Fowler following the accident. "At that height the engine trouble began, and Lieutenant Stanley began striving to steer to a clear space. The machine did not make a sheer drop, but despite all Stanley's efforts he was unable to avoid striking the tree."

A 2500 foot drop in a parachute brought the other injury of the day. Sergeant Edward Saurin of the United States air service recruiting party suffered bruises and lacerations when he landed on top of a shed of the Biscaglia Brothers cannery.

He was taken immediately to the Columbian hospital where officers of the party ordered him to remain until the morning in spite of his protests in order that he might recover from the nervous shock suffered in the fall. He will accompany the recruiting party to San Francisco this afternoon.

Sergeant Saurin, who was chief of cordage at the Armada balloon school and an experienced balloon man, was taken into the air by Frank Bryant of the Redwood City aviation school, who donated his services and the use of his airplane for the demonstration. The plane was equipped with a 200-horsepower Hall-Scott motor.

HIGH WINDS RETARD.

It was planned by the sergeant to drop from an altitude of 5000 feet, but because of the strong wind prevailing high above the city, the drop was made from an altitude of about 2500 feet. The parachute used in the drop was a regulation equipment with a spread of twenty-seven feet and five inches.

During his brief stay in this city the recruiting party has examined more than twenty recruits and it was stated by one of the officers that San Jose has shown an unusual interest in the air service and that a large number of additional recruits were expected from this district as a result of the demonstrations.

MISHAP AT BAKERSFIELD.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., July 17.—S. J. Taylor, a traveling battery salesman of Los Angeles, was severely injured and Sergeant Oscar Holte badly bruised, shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the army airplane which Holte was driving fell several hundred feet in East Bakersfield. The plane struck the edge of a house and a tree which broke the force of the fall. An X-ray of Taylor's injuries is now being taken. The doctors say that apparently he is not dangerously injured. Taylor is a former army man. The airplane is one of a squadron of three which arrived from March field to conduct an air-service recruiting campaign in Bakersfield.

ARCHITECT HELD FOR TRIP WITH SISTER-IN-LAW

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—John Bowman, Pawhuska, Okla., architect, must answer to the grand jury here on a charge of transporting his sister-in-law, Fanny Martin, from Long Beach, Cal., to Oklahoma, for immoral purposes.

A few minutes after the United States commissioner made that ruling, following Bowman's hearing, Bowman was arrested on a second charge, alleging he took Miss Martin from Pawhuska to Wichita, Kansas.

Mrs. Bowman, who, at first, appeared as a witness for the prosecution, testified at yesterday's session of the hearing that she never had seen anything improper in the relations between her husband and her sister, Miss Martin.

FRANKIE MALONE NOSES OUT JIMMY DUNDEE IN FOUR ROUNDS

OAKS DROP ANOTHER TO SACRAMENTO WHILE SEALS TRIM BILL CLYMER'S HIRED HANDS

WATTS TRACT BOXER PROVES SURPRISE AT THE AUDITORIUM

By BOB SHAND.

Frankie Malone made good on the nice things said about him last night when he took a four-round decision from Jimmy Dundee in the main event of Tommy Simpson's show at the auditorium. Frankie did not win by much but he had enough of an edge to warrant the decision being rendered in his favor. Malone took the first two rounds, broke even in the third and went to the third again in the fourth. In the first he scored a knock-down, or maybe it was just a near knock-down, and he staggered Jimmy again in the second. Dundee was trying all the way and hooked the old left to the body repeatedly, but he could not get away from Malone's right cross and he was in danger several times.

In the second round Jimmy opened a cut over Malone's light eye and the crowd booed for the balance of the fight. The blood bothered Frankie in the third round and he missed repeatedly. The fourth was the fastest of the night and Malone did the forcing and landed the cleaner punches.

Best Featherweight Battle in Years

It was one of the best featherweight fights in recent years and a return match would please the cash customers, or at least a big majority of them—it is impossible to please them all. The boys not only put up a clever exhibition but on occasion they stood too close and slugged each other.

Dundee's best round was the third, when he shot a pair of hard rights to Malone's chin that slowed Frankie up, but the Watts tract boy soon recuperated and carried the fight to his opponent. Malone was the aggressor in every round, even forcing the fight when he could hardly see out of his injured eye. Dundee was trying all the time and the best of Frankie had without showing any signs of weakness. Dundee played his left hook to perfection, but Malone countered every time and his blows carried more steam than Jimmy's.

Frankie Denny Wins From Jack Reeves

Frankie Denny received the decision over Jack Reeves after four tough rounds. It was a rough and tumble affair, too rough for the first two rounds, but the Watts tract boy soon recuperated and carried the fight to his opponent. Malone was the aggressor in every round, even forcing the fight when he could hardly see out of his injured eye. Dundee was trying all the time and the best of Frankie had without showing any signs of weakness. Dundee played his left hook to perfection, but Malone countered every time and his blows carried more steam than Jimmy's.

Frank Reeves was sick in bed and could not fight Joe Meyer, but George Drew, the colored middleweight, took a chance with the Watts tract boy and earned a draw for himself. Meyer started off like a champion and staggered the colored boy several times in the first two rounds but Drew changed his tactics in the last two rounds and stood off and boxing. Meyer would have won hands down had Drew stood up to him, but George switched in time. It was a good fight.

Battling Viera showed up with a broken hand and Eddie London was sent in against Jimmy Ford. There was nothing at stake and he made a good game showing against his more experienced opponent. A decision was absolutely necessary Ford would have received it.

Sensational Finish Thrills Customers. Eddie James and Teddy O'Hara staged one of the best fights of the night and it had a peculiar ending. After making a sucker out of O'Hara for three rounds and two minutes and forty seconds of the last round James ran into a straight left to the chin that set him on his back. He got up at the count of five and was promptly knocked down again. He was on his feet and the fight was stopped and awarded to O'Hara with only ten seconds to go. It was a sensational finish to a great little scrap.

Jim Barry and Charlie Lloyd fought for the worst championship and Barry got the decision.

WILD BILL ANGLING FOR HELP; SCHALLER MAY JOIN SEATTLE

Poor old Bill Clymer is having a terrible time with his ball club. Every time Bill ships a ball-player back to the Class-D jungles one of his star athletes takes sick or something, with the result that the Seattle boss has to scout the highways and byways for athletes to make up a team. When his gang lined up against the Seals yesterday Jack Roche, released by the Oaks last Saturday, was found at first base, and there is a chance of the veteran, "Biff" Schaller, playing the outfield for Clymer before the week is over. The manager of the Purple Sox had a run-in with Gus Gleichman, his regular first baseman, last week and Gus was promptly shipped to the jungles. Clymer depended on Jack Knight playing the initial bag, but Knight has a Charlie horse and poor Bill was left without a first sacker. It was lucky for him that Jack Roche was available or he would have been forced to either play first himself or send a pitcher in to do infield duty.

Biff Schaller May Play With Seattle

Bill Cunningham, the local kid who has stood the testing of Clymer's season has no right out there while his Charlie horse is acting as it is. Bill has a mighty bad leg and he should be on the bench. Cunningham has up in the pinch three times yesterday when he failed to do any good for the cause the Seals supporters gave him the well-known hurling cry when he failed to do any good in his crippled condition. Schaller has a pair of iron arms and he has a pair of iron legs, but he means nothing to Mr. Clymer. Bill is a game guy and he is willing to give him a chance. If some of his other athletes meet misfortune he may yet sign Biff Devereaux and Lou Kennedy.

Regan and Couch Pitch Good Ball

The Seals took the opener from the northern crew yesterday, but the two, but they were mighty unlucky to lose. Mike Regan showed the Seals some fine pitching, but he never had a chance to win when the Seattle batters fell down in the first. The Sox had men on the paths in every inning but the second, but the pinch hitters failed to pitch and Johnny Couch, who was the chugging for the Seals, bore down when trouble loomed ahead. Couch got away to a bad start when the first two men up hit off healthy singles and Jimmy Walsh walked. That filled the bags and the Seals seemed due until Bill Cunningham took his place at the plate and hit into a doublet. A run scored while the two out were being made and Big Ed Sweeney drove in another run with a single. Then, "Gooch" found himself and had the Swashes rating out of his big right mitt the balance of the afternoon.

Jimmy Canvey Makes a Record at Short

Jimmy Canvey set up some kind of a record when he handled fifteen chances at short without a bobble. Jimmy was credited with a dozen assists and three put-outs and his work was a real show. Some of the chances were unusually hard, but the little San Franciscan went after high ones and low ones with equal grace and got the ball to first ahead of the runner every time. Bad hops meant nothing at all to Canvey yesterday—he seemed to know which way the ball was going to hop and he was there waiting for it. He looked like a big league lumber. This little guy from the Mission, and if the majors were permitted to draft from the minors there would be a whole flock of drafts in for little Jimmy's only chance now is to be held and there is little chance of Doc Strub and Charlie Graham disposing of their star infielder.

Pete Compton Pulls New One on Seals

Pete Compton, the Seattle outfielder, pulled a new one in the ninth inning when he went from first to second on a fly to center field. His club was on a run and Jimmy Walsh was coming up. Had Walsh got a single for himself Pete would have ambled but Jimmy was not there with the necessary blow. It was a daring piece of work and we hate to think what Clymer and the fans would have chipped had Pete been thrown out. He might have been at that had Canvey and Crandall suspected he was going to try the stunt, as they were entirely unprepared for it. Maury Schick caught the fly, but also made a lay return at the stunt was a new one on him also. It is plays like that that make the game interesting, and if Pete has any more like it the fans would like to see him try 'em.

FALKENBERG PITCHES GOOD BALL AFTER CARL HOLLING IS CHASED TO SHOWERS

SACRAMENTO, July 17.—Carl Holling, one of Del Howard's best-bets, was made the "goat" of the second straight win that Bill Rodgers' Coyotes put over on the Oaks yesterday. Holling was on the mound for the Oaks while Walter "Lefty" Walls had the honor for the Coyotes when the teams lined up for their second game of the series, and fans of this city found out that Manager Rodgers made a good pick-up when he got Walls from the Seattle club. The Oaks took dangerous and that southpaw thrower let the Oaks down with four scattered hits, while the Oaks had completed the main work of their 3-to-0 win during the six innings that Holling remained in the box.

It has been quite noticeable that Howard has been using Big Cy Falkenberg as a relief hurler, but looking at the way this tall fellow has worked in the last few games while doing relief duty, one would discover it would not be a bad idea to shoot Big Cy to the box to start a game. Falkenberg pitched the last three innings against the locals and not one of them got as far as first base. That is going some for a pitcher who steps into the box at a time that the batters are having a lot of fun hitting the shoots of another hurler.

The Oaks never had much of a chance to do any scoring against the pitching of Walls, for the crooked arm finger refused to let the visitors pair any of their hits. Only once did the Oaks look dangerous and that was in the first inning, when runners got on second and third with two out, and then Roney Middleton took care of a long fly from Rod Murphy's bat.

Midleton continues to make his count when playing against his old teammates, and it was a homer off his bat in the first inning that would have been enough to beat the Oaks. After Babe Pinelli was out Roney drove the ball over the right field wall and the game was won right there.

That homer of Middleton's did not worry Holling and he went on with his work by retiring the side in order until the fourth inning.

Midleton was an infield out to open for the Coyotes, and then Eldred got an infield hit. Wolter drove a hit through short and Griggs singled to right, starting in Eddie's Denney. Willie let the ball roll by him, Wolter and Griggs advancing a base. Holling grabbed a rap off the bat of McGaffigan and threw the ball to Murphy, intending to catch Wolter off third. Sammy Bohne got in on the play and let Wolter score by dropping the ball. Griggs went to third and McGaffigan to second. Orr laid down a bunt which Holling fielded too late to catch Griggs at the plate, but got Orr at first. McGaffigan left all bases unoccupied by stealing home, and then Cooper grabbed Cook's hot liner to end the game.

The fifth inning brought a hit for Middleton, while a line drive by Pinelli and which landed in Lane's glove in center field, showed that Holling was not going to get by Howard sent Falkenberg to the hill in the next inning.

ROCKY MIDDLETON BUMPS ONE OUT OF LOT FOR HOMER

The Oaks never had much of a chance to do any scoring against the pitching of Walls, for the crooked arm finger refused to let the visitors pair any of their hits. EXHIBIT FOR DAIRYMEN TO FEATURE SHOW

Special to The TRIBUNE.

HAYWARD, July 17.—Activities of the Alameda county cow-testing association will be described and exhibits showing the value to dairymen of membership in this association will be a feature of the live stock section of the Edgewood Fair, which is being held here August 8, 9 and 10, according to plans of H. W. McCormick, cow-tester for both the Alameda and Contra Costa county associations. Mr. McCormick started work as cow-tester for Alameda county this month following the resignation of the former tester, Miss Marion Punnell, two months before. He is planning an educational campaign to increase the membership of the association in this county and is discussing the possibility of cow-testing exhibits in the coming farm products show with Farm Adviser H. A. W. Lee.

At present the association includes about sixty per cent of all dairy cattle eligible for membership or about 300 head of cows. Charts showing the results have been enabled to cut their herds to increase butter-fat or milk quantity production will be prepared and exhibited, if decision to enter a cow-testing association exhibit at the show is made.

Although Alameda county has quite a large dairying industry, few pure-bred cattle are grown in the county, according to E. Smith, chairman of the livestock committee of the farm products show, who says that there will be little competition for the ribbons in the cattle exhibits.

"On the other hand," says Smith, "the poultry men are coming through strong for the farm products show and we expect to have a large exhibit of some real fancy stock in the poultry section. Pigeon men too are planning some fancy exhibits and many state prize winners will be shown."

A. L. Thompson of Los Angeles was high man at the competitive shoots with a score of 278. F. E. Webster and Carl Schroeder of San Diego were second and third, respectively.

HUNT FOR "LAVENDER HORSE" CAUSES ARREST.

SACRAMENTO, July 17.—The action of R. W. Cudworth, 17, in asking the release of the local livestock stable belonging to a horse "with a dash of lavender in it" aroused the suspicion of a police officer and the youth was taken to the city jail.

Investigation revealed that he lived in San Francisco and had run away from home Monday with the intent, he told the police, of going to the Orient on July 20. The boy's father was notified by the police and he promised to send transportation for the return of the wandering youth.

MISSIONARY PLAYS UPHOLD AT SESSION.

ASIL OAKLAND, July 17.—Missionary drama, tableaux and pageants in young people's societies of Protestant churches were endorsed here in the open parliament of the sixth annual missionary training conference, being conducted by the Interchurch World Movement.

The greater attendance at the conference than in any previous year is of interest in the work is said to be intense.

During the morning session today, Dr. James A. Francis gripped his audience with a graphic word picture of the ascension of Christ, and his description of the evangelizing work of the disciples which began immediately after Jesus had departed from among them.

The morning classes were well attended, and the twelve teachers all reported encouraging results.

BEN ALLEN SPEAKS ON CONSERVATION.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, July 17.—"Voluntary food conservation accomplished more in the United States than in any other country," said Ben S. Allen of Sacramento, while telling an audience how the people of this country answered the call for food conservation during the war. Allen directed the publicity campaign of the food administration, and prior to his work in that capacity was one of Hoover's assistants in Belgium.

ROBBIE FREED WHEN MAN CAN'T FIND COP.

RED BLUFF, July 17.—For two hours E. B. Babcock, night watchman at a local garage, tramped around town with a burglar in his custody trying to find an officer. He didn't succeed so he turned the robber loose and went back to bed.

At least this is the report Babcock made to the police. He said he caught the burglar in the act of going through tool boxes of cars in the garage.

26 MILES OF FLUME VALUED AT LITTLE.

REDDING, July 17.—A timber flume 26 miles long, the cost of $150,000 30 years ago is now worth only $10 and a logging railroad five miles long is worth only $250.

This is the contention of George W. Johnson, agent for the bondholders who bought the property of the Terry Land and Timber Co. last year for $185,000, under foreclosure proceedings. The property was assessed this year for $77,190. The bondholders want the valuation cut down to $37,160, and they presented their claim today to the superior sitting as a board of equalization. The supervisors took the matter under advisement.

LANDOWNERS FIGHT CANYON PROJECT.

REDDING, July 17.—Farmers and landowners near Cottonwood and Anderson whose lands will be submerged if the Iron canyon dam is built as proposed appealed to the supervisors for money to help fight the project here and in Washington. The supervisors set aside a fund of $10,000 for the purpose, if needed. The Iron canyon dam would make a lake in the Sacramento river 15 miles long and ruin $15,000,000 worth of property, the farmers say. They hold also that the land down the valley could be irrigated by water diverted from the river higher than Iron canyon, thus avoiding the construction of a dam. The Shasta county supervisors urge the most thorough investigation by the Washington authorities.

WOMAN DENIES OWN "DEATH" NEWS OF THE STATE AVIATOR DIES IN PLANE MISHAP

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—Objecting to being dead, buried and her body exhumed for identification, Miss Rose Douglas, formerly of Batavia, N. Y., missing eight years, entered the Santa Monica police headquarters and proved herself quite alive.

A body washed upon the sands at Santa Monica a year and a half ago was placed in an unmarked grave. Six months ago Chief Ferguson received a letter from a Batavia lawyer asking assistance in finding Miss Rose Douglas, supposed to be in Southern California. The description of the woman fitted that of the body washed upon the beach.

The chief sent a photograph. There came a request that the body be exhumed and identified by certain dental work. This would have been done had not Miss Douglas appeared. "There is no mystery about it," she said. "I came out here and got out of touch with my people, that's all."

HUNT FOR "LAVENDER HORSE" CAUSES ARREST.

SACRAMENTO, July 17.—The action of R. W. Cudworth, 17, in asking the release of the local livestock stable belonging to a horse "with a dash of lavender in it" aroused the suspicion of a police officer and the youth was taken to the city jail.

Investigation revealed that he lived in San Francisco and had run away from home Monday with the intent, he told the police, of going to the Orient on July 20. The boy's father was notified by the police and he promised to send transportation for the return of the wandering youth.

ARSENAL AT BENICIA TO BE ENLARGED

Special to THE TRIBUNE.

BENICIA, July 17.—One hundred and eighty-one thousand dollars have been appropriated for the construction of a concrete artillery storehouse at Benicia arsenal and a concrete quartermaster warehouse, according to advices reaching here from Washington by the arsenal campaign committee of the Benicia Chamber of Commerce.

This money was appropriated by Secretary of War Baker and is believed to be the first result of the arsenal city's campaign for the enlargement of the Benicia arsenal to one of the manufacturing as well as the warehousing type. Announcement of the appropriation is contained in a letter received by Senator Phelan from Secretary of War Baker in reply to one of the senators' letters asking it definite plans had been made by the war department for future expansion of the arsenal.

WORK TO START SOON.

Work on the new buildings at the arsenal is to start immediately. Lack Ship Space for Alien Deportation

My Dear Senator: With reference to letter of June 24, 1919, regarding the erection of storehouses at Benicia arsenal, I wish to inform you that the development of the arsenal at Benicia, which has been recently signed by me authorizing the expenditure of $131,000 for the erection of a concrete artillery storehouse at Benicia arsenal, Benicia, California, and $50,000 for a concrete quartermaster warehouse thereat.

Work will be started on these buildings at an early date. In view of the development of the Benicia arsenal for the manufacture of army supplies, the Benicia Chamber of Commerce has said that no matter how strong the fortifications on the coast, would not withstand a long attack from enemy invaders unless the Benicia arsenal were equipped for the manufacture of supplies.

WOULD PROTECT COAST.

The campaign committee says that with the main source of army supplies coming from the Atlantic coast a few enemy spies with the judicious use of dynamite could make the available passes over the Sierra Nevada mountains now used by the railroads, impassable for months, and thus cut off the army's most necessary supplies.

The establishment of a manufacturing arsenal at Benicia, it is declared, would dispose of this danger. All the raw material for the manufacture of arms, ammunition and other equipment is close at hand and easily available. Besides, it is said, in the matter of freight charges alone the government in a time of stress could save more than the original outlay for a well equipped manufacturing arsenal, such as the demands of the Pacific protection require.

GIRL ACCUSED OF FORGERY IS FOUND IN CLOSET

Vera Rodriguez, eighteen years old, is in the city prison, charged with forgery, after having hidden three days in a dark closet, fearing apprehension. The police accuse her of having stolen a pay check at the California cotton mills, where she was employed, endorsing it in the name of Eva Joseph, to whom it was made out, and cashing it.

The girl's hat and coat, left in the locker room at the mills, where she worked, three days ago, was the clue by which the police were led to her home. Miss Joseph had reported the loss of her check, and in the meantime for three days Miss Rodriguez' hat and coat were in the mill locker room. Other workers said that she had left the mills in apparent haste, leaving her hat and coat there, and the police called at her home at 263 Tenth street.

In the search that followed the girl was found in the closet. She refused to take refuge, and taken hysterical, to the central police station. She denies having taken the check.

She is being held for investigation and is booked on a forgery charge.

MAYOR SCORES COUNCIL AS

"If this strike is called, and the city laborers and mechanics walk out the responsibility lies at the door of the three commissioners who have tied up the Civil Service Board, one of these men who rode into office on my coat tails, shouting that he was with me from start to finish, and who has now thrown me down."

So Mayor John A. Davis today disposed of the threatened city employees' strike, and of Commissioner W. H. Edwards, who voted with Commissioners F. F. Morse and Fred Soderberg against the confirmation of the appointment to the civil service board of Preston Higgins who had been named by the mayor.

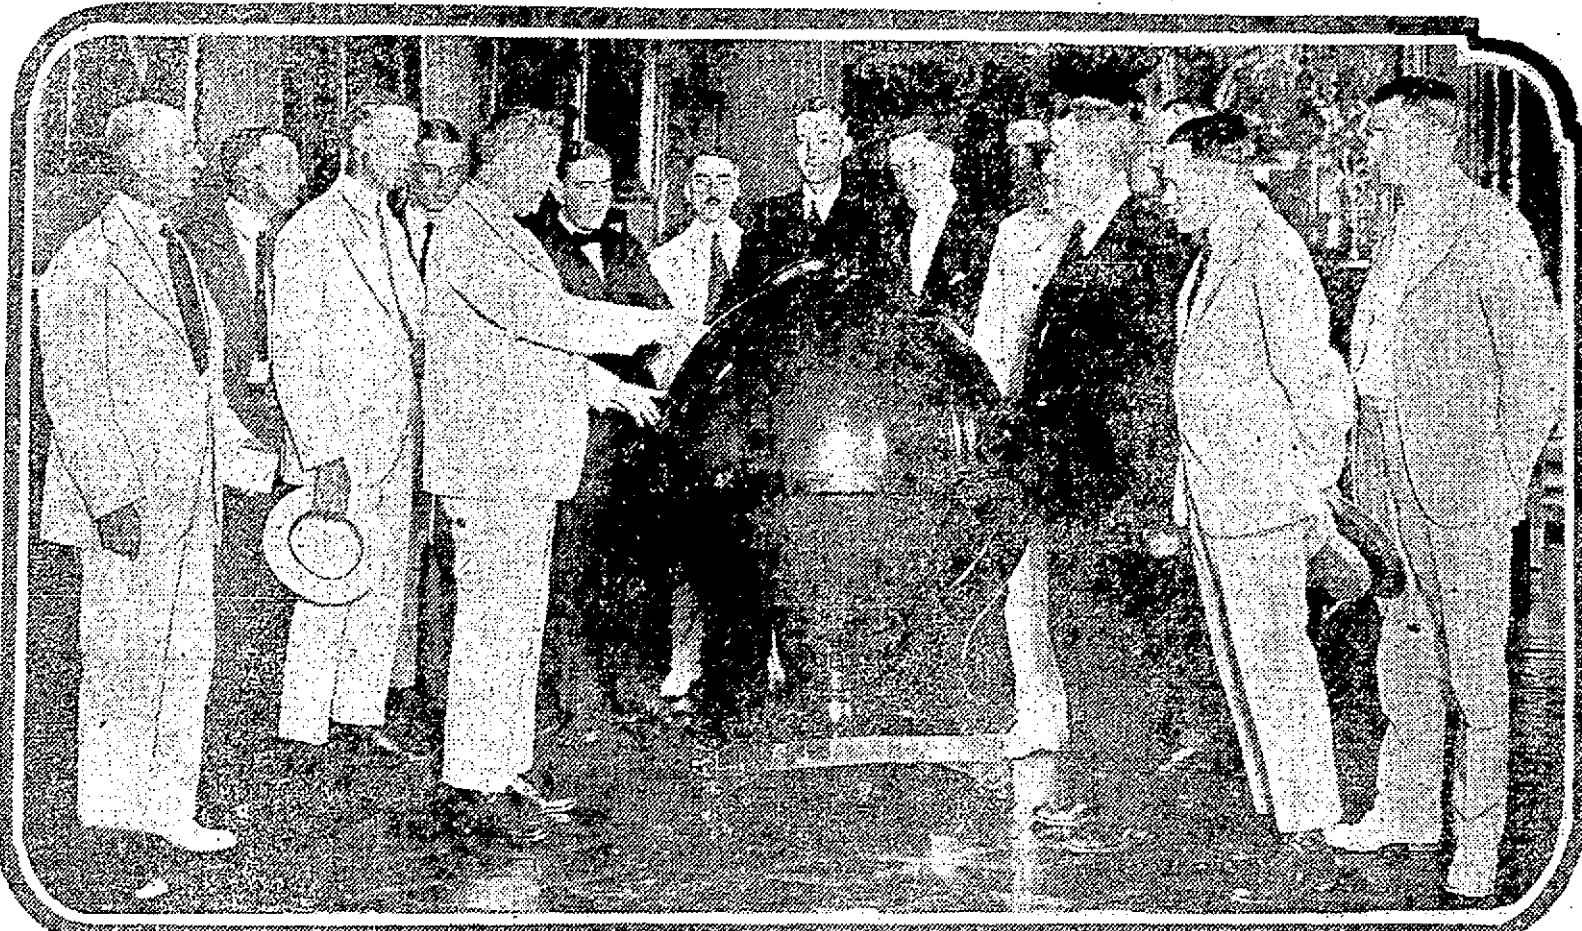

NEW FIGHT IMPENDS.
With the council majority apparently solid against the confirmation of Higgins, and J. F. Chambers and Ralph Fisher, the two present members of the board, solid in the declaration that they will not pass on wage raises without a third man to share responsibility, opposing forces are lining up for a political battle at the city hall over the Higgins appointment.

Davis holds that he has made the appointment and done his duty. He says that to keep on submitting names until the council majority approves one would give the council majority the appointment instead of the mayor. He says that the three commissioners who held up his appointment are directly responsible for holding up the city's business, and of the three, scores Edwards in particular.

"I was not going to support him at the last election," said Davis, "but his friends raised such a fuss that I finally did. He rode around with me in my machine and shouted to the housewives that he was a Davis man. I elected him. Why, as the shirder, while I was speaking and the men were cheering me, he was tugging at the coat tail of the man who was introducing the speakers, and he was saying, 'Tell 'em I'm for the mayor, I'm for the mayor, I'm strong!' Now a couple of weeks after election, he throws me down and combines with Morse and Soderberg."

EDWARDS' STATEMENT.
"If the mayor would submit several names to the council we could doubtless agree on one to confirm," said Edwards. "The mayor insists on arbitrarily forcing the council to confirm his appointment."

on arbitrarily forcing the council to confirm his appointment." Higgins refuses to discuss the situation. He is still acting as Davis' secretary, the mayor having refused to accept his resignation. In the meantime, Commissioner Fred Soderberg threatens to take action, if possible, to hold up Higgins' salary. Soderberg recently filed with the city council two letters, charging that Higgins had criticized him publicly, and that Higgins, as a "subversive," had no right to do so. Higgins filed a fair answer to Soderberg's complaint, which, it is said by the mayor, started the opposition to the secretary's appointment to the civil service board.

SODERBERG'S REPLY TO MAYOR.
Soderberg, in answer to Davis' announcement that he will make no other civil service board appointment, has issued the following statement: "I have noted in the public press the statement of the mayor to the effect that having made the appointment of Preston Higgins to the civil service board, he is through with the matter, and that unless that nomination is confirmed by the council, the civil service board will not be held."

"This is characteristic of the mayor. He is fully aware that the affairs of the city of Oakland are entrusted to the mayor and four commissioners, and that they are jointly and individually responsible for the conduct of the city's affairs. The mayor knew when he nominated Preston Higgins for the civil service board that the charter required his appointment to be confirmed by the council."

"It was clearly intended by the charter that the city of Oakland should not be controlled by one man, and instead, divided the responsibilities among five persons. The mayor will come to understand sooner or later that I will not stand for such a surrender of my responsibility. In connection with the same matter, it is interesting to note the statement of Higgins in the public press to the effect that the confirmation by the council has been looked upon more as an act of courtesy. I suppose that this is the most flattering view for Higgins to take of my action. But it will be more in keeping with the situation when I say that I refuse to confirm his appointment wholly upon the grounds of inconsideration. I say this without malice toward this boyish appointee, but with a firm conviction that civil service principles cannot, and will not, be maintained by such persons as Higgins."

DESIGNED FOR VOTE.
"I have also noted in the public press that Higgins says that no combinations have been made or sought after to secure his confirmation. I have been besieged constantly by various persons who have come to me in Higgins' behalf to secure the confirmation of his appointment. As a matter of fact every possible practice known to politics has been indulged in. I am informed that each of the other commissioners has been besieged in a similar manner. "I can only add that I have no sympathy whatever for a one-man city government. If ever there were clear indications of such a desire in anyone, I think they have been shown in the present instance by the mayor."

According to Sam Donohue, business agent of the Building Trades Council, a strike may be called unless the union organization has assurance by next Tuesday that the city will pay union wages next year. The recommendation will not be considered, says Donohue, until there is another member on the board. "Two men cannot take a $100,000 responsibility," he insists.

BOYS RUN AWAY;
MOTHER FRANTIC

ALAMEDA, July 17.—A worried, half-frantic mother appeared at police headquarters this morning in vain hope that some trace of her two missing boys might have been discovered by the police during the night. The mother is Mrs. H. L. Sherrer of 1312 Oak street and the two missing boys are Harvey, age 11 years, and Raymond, age 5 years. The two left home yesterday morning. Their father is critically ill and the mother is about ready to collapse through fear that the children might have gotten out onto the water and been drowned. She told the police this morning that a report had reached her that friends had seen the eldest boy at 9 o'clock last night but that the five-year-old boy was not with him. The mother believes that something has happened to the younger child and that the older boy is afraid to come home and report. The two children wanted to go to Neptune Beach yesterday morning but were told not to go. Shortly after permission to go to the beach was denied the boys left home.

COOK OWN FOOD,
ADVICE TO WOMEN

"The kitchen is a woman's place," Mrs. Nellie H. Comstock of Santa Rosa has declared it. Moreover, she asserts that it is futile to make the world safe for democracy while women go shrieking and idling along their way.

Once Mrs. Comstock was happy in Evanston, Illinois, where a community kitchen pampered the housewives and automatically answered the eternal question "what shall we have for dinner." She neither toiled nor perspired over the pots and pans. Then she came to California. She wrote back to her old friends, the community kitchen patrons, such words as threw them into a fit. And she admonished:

"How lazy we are, bringing food into our homes from the outside. Let us arise and surmount all obstacles until we once more are firmly entrenched in the kitchens of our homes. That is a woman's place. "Stay in their homes, cook their own food and provide a good table for their husbands. It is my advice to women," offers the apostle who has arisen to lead the men forth to steaming nutrition such as mother used to prepare. "The world's being made safe for democracy is futile while women continue to idle and shrink whenever they have the opportunity. "What good is a woman if she fails to fulfill her chief obligation to society—of providing a real home? They are misfits. "Children," concludes the warrior against community kitchens, "are overfed, overclothed and over-dressed and are being brought up in an atmosphere of luxuries."

"Mrs. Comstock is just looking for publicity," say her friends back home who are pleased enough to see her dinner table tastefully put before them, assured that husband will be more than satisfied when he does not observe the stain of fret and worry upon their countenances. "The idea," sniff they. Friendly relations are strained since the receipt of the epistle.

Boys Stuck Hours

ALAMEDA, July 17.—Jack Dunn of 1610 Central avenue, and a boy friend, reached home near midnight last night after being stuck in the mud in a boat of San Leandro for hours. The two boys left Alameda early yesterday morning. Their non-arrival home caused the relatives of Dunn to report the matter to the police. While a search wash being organized the boys arrived in Alameda.

PATROLMEN IN OAKLAND ASK
SECOND RAISE

Following the granting of a raise from $115 per month to $130, through the recent Police and Fire Amendment, policemen in the Oakland department have filed a request for another raise increasing the pay of patrolmen to $150 per month and their superiors in proportion. The request was made following a meeting last night in the police assembly room.

The police and fire amendment raised the statutory salary in the city charter from $115 to a minimum of $130, the wording being that the police patrolman's basic pay should be "Not less than $130 per month," this giving the city council the right to vote an increase.

According to the policemen they cannot live and support families on their present pay. The demand will be referred by Commissioner F. F. Morse to the Civil Service Board and Budget Committee.

CITY PRISON TANK
'JUDGE' IS BUSY

At the present rate of increase, the drunk cases in the city prison are to be tried in the police courts as of old and the police bailiff, Robert Forgie, will be shorn of his special honor.

Bob Forgie presides over a dimly lit court each morning in the "tank" of the city prison. An average of two and three cases charging drunkenness are being recorded on the police blotter daily and the police magistrates take this to indicate that overdrinking is still prevalent among confirmed drunks and will continue until all booze is gone.

Drunk cases have been dismissed by "Judge" Forgie since June 30 but this practice will be discontinued if the offenses become too numerous and the new judge will lose his job. Three drunks received a lecture from Forgie yesterday. The lecture usually opens with the query: "Where do you get it?" The accepted alibi of all offenders is invariably this: "I was invited to a family party and got too much."

Pickpocket Suspect
Acquitted by Jury

ALAMEDA, July 17.—Joseph Fagelman, arrested at Neptune Beach several weeks ago on suspicion of being a pickpocket, was acquitted by a jury in the Alameda police court at his examination yesterday afternoon. The police were not sanguine that Fagelman would be held for trial as the evidence was chiefly circumstantial.

King George and Pershing sip their tea, as they sit down together, and as no topic comes to mind, they talk about the weather; just talk about the common things that happen every day, and sip their tea, at half-past three, and Pershing goes away.

The Deutschland has been purchased as a kind of souvenir (the boat that sailed beneath the waves and bobbed up over here); and now it's owned and treasured by a man who swings a quill, but chances are he'll never feel the German rover's thrill.

The price of shoes is going up, along with shirts and collars, and soon a pair of kicks, b'gosh, will cost us thirty dollars; oh, what a fellow going to do, if deep within his jeans, he hasn't got enough, by heck, to buy a plate of beans.

WOMEN TRY TO
'SNEAK' SWIM
IN MEN'S POOL

BERKELEY, July 17.—Despite a stream of questioning from friends, campus officials, strangers and mere acquaintances, Felix Brandstein, caretaker of the men's swimming pool at the University of California, maintains Sphinx-like silence as to the identity of two summer session women students who broke into the tank for those of masculine gender last Sunday. Inquiry from every side fails to shake Brandstein's silence.

The two girls were proponents for women's rights. They also adhere to the theory of direct action. They wanted to swim Sunday afternoon. They got into their bathing suits, hidden by the bushes of a nearby canyon, and came forth to the pool. Alas and alack, according to their story as told to Brandstein, the women's tank was closed. And so, later they appeared at the pool for men only, sneaked in the tank and were about to try all the strokes in the swimming manual when Brandstein appeared.

Two Men Accused of Stealing Auto
Clarence Wimbles and Byron Shell are in the city prison today on $1000 bail each, on charges of auto theft, following the police say, of confession that they took an automobile owned by E. M. Vain, 2242 Seventh avenue, to take several girls on a joy ride.

The police say the men are suspected of having taken several other cars during the past week, deserting the machines after driving about in them. This is being investigated.

Honest Advertising

THIS is a topic we all hear now-a-days because so many people are inclined to exaggerate. Yet has any physician told you that we claimed unreasonable remedial properties for Fletcher's Castoria? Just ask them. We won't answer it ourselves, we know what the answer will be. That it has all the virtues to-day that was claimed for it in its early days is to be found in its increased use, the recommendation by prominent physicians, and our assurance that its standard will be maintained. Imitations are to be found in some stores and only because of the Castoria that Mr. Fletcher created. But it is not the genuine Castoria that Mr. Fletcher honestly advertised, honestly placed before the public, and from which he honestly expects to receive his reward. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Dr. J. C. Fletcher.
